College of Medicine.

AT a full and respectable meeting of the Medical Faculty of this city, at Dr. Davidson's, it was unanimously resolved, that, in consequence of the late interruption of the Lectures on Anatomy and Surgery, and the very generous and handsome present of a Lot of Ground in the precincts from a gentleman whose philanthropy and amiableness are only equalled by his love of science, a number of Physicians be appointed to wait on the inhabitants of the city to procure such a sum of money as may be necessary for the erection of buildings suitable for the accommodation of professors in the different branches of Medicine.

Many circumstances concur to invite to the above measure. Baltimore is rising by its commerce, to a rank among the first cities of the union, is the only eligible and in every respect suitable spot south of Philadelphia, on which a Medical College can be established; it is flourishing in riches, opening a field to manufactures; and is, we hope, assuming to itself, by its generous and enlightened views, the reputation of being a nursery for the arts, the sciences, and the liberal professions.

At this moment a bill to organize a medical College is before the General Assembly of the state; and the liberality of our citizens will not, in our opinion, wait to receive an example so indicative of a polished condition of society, from the state, in an establishment from which such immediate advantage will result to our municipal community. It would rather suggest the example.

By order of the meeting,

Fortuna Favet Fortibus.

Such a charm is wealth to man, Many are his ways to seek it; Happy is he, if he can, Find away to get and keep it. What a silly fool was I, All my wits were bent on pleasure, Now, I am wiser with a sigh, Pleasures lengthen'd, shorten treasure. When my little all seem'd gone, Still I thought to keep it up; Beauty shun'd me as a dove, And cold caution held the cup. As my wits increase, my case, So increase'd my fortune, Never should a man despair, Hope is all our earthly good, Tho' of nearly all bereft, Something whispered, trust to Chance! And with little, little left, Found enough for future wants. Chance has prov'd my greatest friend, All the Parasites are fled, Should they come for certain ends, They must batter I'll uphold. But if reprimand won't do, They may come to me to greet, Sirs! says I: I've done with you, Try your Chance in Market street.
