VACCINATION.

THE Kine Pock is now universally & justly acknowledged to afford as an easy remedy if made use of, to preserve us from the Small Pox. It is too true, however, we seem already so inattentive to its incomparable virtues, that for the summer last past, it was with the greatest difficulty a sufficient number of inoculations could be performed, to keep the matter alive.
Have nevertheless, heretofore succeeded to preserve the vaccine infection without any interruption, and am now well provided with active matter, which will afford me great pleasure to distribute among those physicians who have not yet been supplied; and I hope every citizen who has occasion and is attentive to the welfare of his family, will employ us during this health season, to perform this simple but highly necessary and important operation.
