BOSTON, May 11.

Representative account Current.

The public may rely on the truth of the following statement of the relative political gain and loss of representatives, in the towns from which we have heard the result of their elections, compared with last year.

Federal Democratic Gain 69 Loss 3 Gain 20 Loss 38 Making thus far a clear Federal gain of eighty-four representatives.

The Senate will be Federal.

The governor and council have at last counted, and notified the choice of Senators.
They state, that twenty Federalists and eight-teen democrats, are elected—Among them is Lothrop Lewis, Esq. one of the Federal and Levi Hubbard, esq. one of the democratic candidates for Cumberland County! They also state that there are two vacancies, one in York and the other in Lincoln district; in each of which there is one Federal, and one democratic candidate.

Interesting to farmers.

Fifty thousand quintals of fish, which will soon rot, and make good manure, are for sale, dog cheap. Thanks to Mr. Jefferson and his mistress the Embargo. If not sold, soon it must all be sent to Marblehead, where it is in great demand. Inquire all along shore.

May 11

On Sunday sailed for Halifax, the British sloop of war Emulous, capt. Stupart. Passengers, Mr. Deblois, Mr. Field, and Mr.
Burroughs.

Congress have allowed the law to expire which prohibited trade to ST. DOMINGO.
If the embargo comes off before the next session of Congress, this trade will be resumed.

A gentleman from Eastport, says that place is glutted with flour—that some seizures have been made—that a revenue cutter and several custom house boats are continually on the watch—that the embargo experiment may be fairly made.

NEW-YORK, May 14.

The Collector of this port has advertised for a vessel to go to Rio Janeiro and to touch at St. Salvador, with permission to take American citizens passengers.

We understand that it is the intention of government to send a special envoy to the Prince Regent at the Brazils, to congratulate him on his safe arrival in that country, and to form a commercial treaty with him.

Late Foreign Intelligence.

Last night arrived at this port, the ship Allegany, captain Morris, from Greenock.
Glasgow papers are received by her to the 10th ultimo.

We do not find by our papers, or from the passengers in the Allegany that any material change had taken place in England relative to the disputes between the two countries. The general wish seemed to lean towards a reconciliation.

The ship Osage, captain Duplex, with dispatches from our government, was spoken off L'Orient the 26th of March.

There had been several reports in circulation in London, that admiral Strachan had had an engagement with the French squadron in the Mediterranean—and that the admiral was killed in the engagement.— These reports proved to be untrue.

In the House of Lords on the 29th March, Lord Hawkesbury, in the course of his speech, observed, that his knowledge of the British orders in council had not in any degree interrupted the negotiation in America, nor had it produced any unfavorable impression in that country; and although Mr. Rose was only instructed to treat upon the affair of the Chesapeake, he took out dispatches to Mr. Erskine, and embracing other objects, and which it was expected would produce a speedy accommodation.

LONDON, March 28.

The Susan, an American ship, has arrived at Plymouth—she was taken in lat. 42, long.
38, on the 10th, by the Siene and Italiene frigates, which had taken the Sappho privateer; the Sarah, letter of marque; and the Windham, an American, and were returning to France. The Sarah and Windham they burnt, and were about to burn the Sappho, she being a dull sailer. They had determined to destroy all American vessels they fell in with, that had been previously boarded by the English. They are two of the four frigates which escaped from St.
Males about three months ago, and went to Martinique with troops. We hope some of our cruisers will fall in with them before they reach a French port. The Susan was made a cartel.

A boat with 21 men on board, got into Dover yesterday from Flushing, from whence they made their escape on Saturday; the fort fired at them as they put to sea, but without doing them any injury. They state that there are eight sail of the line nearly ready for sea, and that two frigates lately sailed from Flushing. Perhaps these were the frigates that were seen on Thursday off Flamborough head.

Some dispatches from General Armstrong, at Paris, were yesterday received by Mr.
Pinkney: they were brought by a Mr.
Patterson, who came through Holland; they do not announce the arrival in France of Mr. Nourse; nor do they, as it is said here, in any respect relate to the subject of the embargo. By a passenger in the last packet, we are informed, that the laying on of the embargo took place in consequence of the British orders in council, which certainly found their way out in the Augusta, which carried Mr. Monroe, and were by that gentlemen transmitted, without delay, to the president; who, in concert with a few of his friends in the senate, advised the adoption of the measure. It was not in consequence of any private mercantile advices.

March 30.

A few days since a general sweep was made of all the fishing boats which had put to sea from the French ports up Channel, and, we understand, a general order has been issued by government for the capture of this kind of craft whenever they may be met with.

The following important notice was yesterday posted up at Lloyd's:—

“By letters from Holland dated the 12th of March, it appears that French privateers cruizing on that coast, pay no respect to licences granted by the Dutch government for importing goods from England.”

Five hundred gun-boats have already been built in the Dutch ports, at the requisition of the French government, and the utmost activity prevails in getting them ready for sea.

Mr. Nourse, who is the bearer of dispatches from America, may be hourly expected—The Osage, on board of which he and the messenger for Paris embarked, was spoken with off L'Orient, by a vessel arrived at Guernsey. The following is an extract of a letter from Guernsey:—

“GUERNSEY, March 20.

“The American government has sent two persons to treat with France and England. The Phoenix privateer, of this place spoke to them going into L'Orient, and brought papers from Philadelphia, which mention the circumstance.”

The Jano, capt. Rutherford, from Lisbon, detained and sent into Plymouth, was boarded by two French corvettes, and informed by the officer that twelve corvettes had sailed from Bordeaux in company, and intended to cruize off the Western Isles.

April 2.

The squadron destined for the Baltic, & so long detained at Portsmouth, by contrary wind sailed on Wednesday. It consisted of the Mars of 74 guns, capt. Lukin; Orion 74, Sir A. Dickson; Polyphemus 64, capt. Heywood; Salcette, capt. Bathurst, and Daphne, frigates, capt. Mason, Matine, capt. H. Stewart; Insolent, lieut.
Marris; Hearty, lieut. Wickham; Protector, lieut. Mitchener; Redbreast, lieut.
Harrison; Steady, lieut. Stow; and the Thrasher, lieut. Dornford. The sailing of the squadron at such a moment, shows the urgency of its object. The Orion, Salcette, and Daphne, have stores and provisions on board sufficient for a foreign station from which it is inferred that those ships are for a special service.

Sir Samuel Hood sailed from the Downs for the Baltic yesterday, in the Centaur—the other ships going upon the same destination only waiting for pilots—the force in the Downs is increasing daily; two more seventy-fours and a sixty-four arrived there on Thursday. The Triumph and Implacable passed Portsmouth yesterday—they are all destined for the Baltic.

We have received further particulars of the negotiation between France and Denmark, respecting the equipment of a fleet of French vessels to be manned by Danish sailors. Bonaparte made the first overtures & proposed, that the required number of Danish mariners of every rank, from the Admiral to the cabin-boy, for twenty sail of the line, should repair to the several ports of France, and navigate them home; but they were still to remain in the service of France.
This, however, was flatly refused, even by the government of Denmark; and the Danish officers and men openly refused to fight under any other than the Danish flag.— Measures were then taken to render the project as little repugnant as possible to the national feelings of the Danes. It was proposed that the vessels should be sold to Denmark; and should proceed from the ports of France to Copenhagen. Under such circumstances, it is highly probable that the Treaty will be finally completed, and that means will be found to gratify the sense of resentment which the Danes feel against this country, without offending their notions of national independence and honor.

The Moniteur of March 23d, contains the intelligence of the march of the Russian troops into Finland, and the arrest of the Russian Minister at Stockholm, with the sealing of his papers, &c. It adds the following remarks:—“Such an outrage on the rights of nations, which is known only to barbarians, has roused the indignation of the whole world. Of what does the king of Sweden complain? That Russia has declared war against him! More than six months are passed since Russia intimated to him that all the principles of neutrality had been broken, and that his alliance with Britain could not be suffered, so that war must necessarily follow.

“On the other side a French army is entering Zealand, and all preparations are making to send these allies of Britain to America, that they may reign there. The king of Britain may doubtless congratulate himself again in parliament as he did before on the new power which he grants to his ally; it is pretended also, that Britain is to give St. Thomas to the king of Sweden as an indemnification. Thus the brave Swedish nation, after having seen their commerce annihilated, is torn to pieces by a war in their interior. How dreadful a calamity it is for a nation to have a king who is governed by levity and folly!”

The Moniteur also contains a letter, dated Hamburg, March 14, which says, “While the Russian army on the one side, has been already seizing a large port of the Northern states of the king of Sweden, on the other side French, Spanish, Dutch and Danish troops are assembling, in order to bring to a speedy termination the war which has been rendered necessary by the obstinacy of the Swedish Monarch. Within a few days every thing has been in motion around us. To-day the last Spanish regiment has entered on the Danish territory, and the 6th regiment of Dutch infantry, which has entered here, is to be followed by three other regiments. Gen. Gratien has entered with them, and it is most probable that the whole, or the greater part of these forces, are to continue their journey into Denmark.”

The Seine and Italiene French frigates, which carried troops to Martinique, have got into L'Orient.

April 4.

Several transports came into the Downs yesterday, and some horse ships have been ordered to sail from the river as quick as possible.—From the number of flat bottomed boats that are landing at Deal, not less than 200, it is supposed that another expedition is preparing—other boats are nearly completed, which are to carry carronades.

The Centaur, Sir, S. Hood, was forced to put back on Saturday into the Downs, but he again set sail yesterday morning with the Orion. The rest of the fleet would, it was believed, follow this morning. They were busily employed all yesterday and the night before, in landing the flat bottomed boats they had brought from Portsmouth and Plymouth.

Some accounts have been received from the French coast, which speak of a fresh assemblage of troops on the heights of Boulogne. The huts which form an encampment in that neighbourhood appear to have been newly painted, and their number considerably increased within the last month; the flotilla in the harbor, however, remains in statu quo.

Accounts from the Tagus, state that the officers of the Russian fleet are anxious to leave that uncomfortable station, could they do it with safety.

The Russians had suffered greatly from the want of necessaries of all kinds. Junot had forbidden any supplies being sent to them, nor had they been enabled, for some time, to procure from the stores in Portugal an ounce of provision of any kind. In the mean while, the inhabitants of Lisbon were reduced to the necessity of making bread of pease, beans, and all the inferior sorts of grain, which, when mixed together, were scarcely eatable; and even of this kind the supply was scanty.

Several councils had been held on board the Russian squadron, to consider of the measures to be pursued, at such an emergency. At one time it was proposed that the Russian fleet should put to sea, consisting of nine sail of the line and a frigate, and risk an engagement with the British; but on reflecting that every one of their ships were damaged in their mats, the plan was abandoned as impracticable, beside this, the crews, for want of proper nourishment, were in a very sickly state. The plan that had met the sense of the majority, and which it was supposed would be adopted, was that of laying up their ships in the Tagus, and marching their crews overland to St.
Petersburgh. The French at Lisbon were not on friendly terms with the Russians.

It was a prevailing notion among the crews, that the withholding of relief from the Russians, was a measure of policy on the part of the French, in order to induce them to abandon their ships and proceed to St. Petersburgh; but when the real scarcity in Lisbon became apparent, they began to judge more favourably of the conduct of Junot. When the Russian squadron first arrived, Junot shewed great attention to the officers, and invited them to dine with him on shore; but these civilities ceased after a time. It is said that offence was given by the Russian officers omitting to toast Bonaparte, after general Junot had drank the health of the Emperor.

March 5.
