mail,] arrived in Philadelphia the next morning, in time to receive his instructions and to set off on his return by noon He arrived in Baltimore early on the following morning, twenty four hours before he could have received an answer by mail.

A journey from Norfolk to Quebec can, we persume, be performed in less than ten days, and it is probable that in a few years, the intercourse between our principal cities will be so frequent, that invitations to dinner and tea parties will be no uncommon thing. Such a circumstance is not half so improbable now, as was twenty years ago, the present wonderful expedition in steam boat navigation. Poulson's Amer. D. Adv.

CHARLESTON, [S C] MAY 23.

PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE.

"Kingston, April 28th, 1818.
3 o'clock, afternoon.

"I have only time to write you that the vessel of war Pelican, from Puerto Cabello and Caraccas, which anchored yesterday at Port Royal, brings very important private correspondence. I have read letters from gentlemen of veracity in the aforesaid Island, and in compendium state the following, which may be relied upon.

HIGHLY INTERESTING.

"A bloody action was fought at Valencia on the 17th inst. between the Patriot Army & the Royalists; the former had their head quarters at Victoria, 18 leagues from Caraccas, and attacked the Spanish army at said place, under the immediate command of General Lopez [Morillo having been previously wounded, mortally, at the Puerto, and carried to Puerto Cabello] who was killed, together with thirty of the principal officers of his legion; and from thence fled the relics of the Royalists to Puerto Cabello.

"All the forces which the Spaniards had in Venezuela, were engaged in the battle of Valencia, 12 leagues distant from Puerto Cabello. Caraccas and La Guayra, are now without the least doubt in possession of the Independents, as detachments were instantly despatched to occupy, the same, after said combat at Valencia, all the inhabitants of which had every thing packed up to evacuate. When the official despatches of the Patriots arrive, I will transmit them without delay.

"I enclose you this day's paper, which with this, you will please immediately hand to the Editors of the City Gazette for publication.

"N. B. I wrote you very interesting news by the schooner Friendship, which has proved to be true, and hope that you directed the same to be published in the Gazettes of your city."

FROM THE AMERICAN WATCHMAN.

Mr. Osborn,

Among the foreign articles in your last paper, I observe one stating, that the Editor of the London Courier seems to dwell with delight upon the dispute between Commodore Perry and Captain Heath, and that the said London Editor entertained his readers with copious extracts from American papers upon the subject.

It is a subject for the moralists to regret, Mr. Osborn, that man is much more disposed to dwell upon the disputes of his fellow creature than to comment upon their better actions. So generally apparent is this feature in the human character, that many would be induced to adopt the idea of a certain Philosopher, who maintained strife and war to be the natural element of mankind, did not some rare and magnanimous exceptions occasionally occur, to redeem humanity, in some degree from the imputation Thus Julius Cæsar, in giving an account of a dispute in which he had been engaged, is satisfied with three significant words—veni. vidi, vici. And I remember a case in which this very commodore Perry was concerned, of a certain dispute which happened on lake Erie on the 10th of September 1813; it is described in these words, by the Commodore himself: "WE HAVE MET THE ENEMY, AND THEY ARE OURS"—Here Sir, there is no dwelling upon the dispute. The taking of a whole British fleet by an inferior force, is told in nine short words. Such an edifying example of Spartan brevity and noble moderation seem to me worthy of a place among the extracts in the London Courier relative to commodore Perry; it may probably entertain the Editor's English readers

A MAN OF FEW WORDS.

FROM HAYTI.

Our correspondent at New York, the editor of the Mercantile Advertiser, has transmitted us the following extract of a letter, dated on board the United States' ship Hornet, Cape Henry, April 28

"We arrived here from New York on the 23d inst. His Sable Majesty will not receive Mr. Taylor, because his credentials are not addressed to "Henry, King of Hayti" We expect to sail to-morrow for Port au Prince, and thence to the Spanish Main. On our arrival here we fired a salute of twenty one guns, which was returned by the same number.—His Majesty spends most of his time in the country, superintending the building of a fortification. It is situated on the top of a very high mountain, having but one passage to it, which has been cut through the rock and will not admit more than three men abreast. It is not yet finished, although he has 300 pieces of cannon mounted, most of which are brass, and none less than 24 pounders. Within this fortification he has provisions and clothing sufficient for the subsistance of an army of 20,000 men for seven years."

It is surprising to find how little excitement or interest, except of a commercial nature, is produced by arrivals from Europe, compared with what existed but a few years since. When the revolutionary tornado was sweeping that quarter of the globe, it is impossible to describe the anxiety felt by all classes of people to learn what new government had been overthrown, and what new country had been desolated. Now, the price of cotton, flour, and tobacco, the price of stocks, & the rates of exchange, are the principal, & almost the only object of enquiry or solicitude. War are at an end, and politics have lost their charms—our own affairs are fortunately in a great degree extricated from those of Europe, & we have little else to do than to take care of and protect, as far as lies in our power, the interests of our country. We wish this state of things may last. Nations flourish more in one year of peace than in ten of war—and none more than this. N. Y. D. Adv.

GENERAL ADVERTISER.

EASTON:

TUESDAY MORNING, JUNE 2, 1818.

WASHINGTON, May 29.

The President left this city yesterday, accompanied by the Secretaries of War and of the Navy, for Annapolis, where he will embark on a tour of observation of the Chesapeake and its principal waters, as far as Norfolk. This excursion was to have followed the laborious tour performed by the President last year, but was prevented by the lateness of his return from the northwest, and by the interposition of other duties. Gen. Swift, Chief Engineer, awaits the President at Norfolk, and will accompany him on the tour.

ANNAPOLIS, May 30

The President of the United States and suite arrived in this city on Thursday evening last, for the purpose of embarking on his intended excursion down the Chesapeake, as far as Hampton and Norfolk. He is accompnied by the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, Col. M'Rea of the engineer corps, and two or three private gentlemen. He was waited on by the Mayor of the city, and an address delivered from the Corporation on Thursday evening.—Yesterday morning was occupied in viewing the public works, the harbour, and the different points on the Severn, from the entrance to the round bay at the head of the river, and in the afternoon he partook of a dinner given by the citizens at Mr Brewer's hotel. We learn that he designs embarking this day.

NORFOLK, May 19.

DISMAL SWAMP CANAL.

EXCURSION TO LAKE DRUMMOND.

On Wednesday last, Col. Wharton, commander of the U. S. marine corps, (who arrived here on Friday week) accompanied by several officers of the navy and citizens, took an excursion to this wild and romantic water. They departed from the navy yard at 12 o'clock, with two barges rowing six oars each, in which they passed through the Dismal Swamp Canal with perfect ease into the lake. We understand that Col. W. expressed his astonishment, as well as pleasure, at the beauty and magnitude of our Canal, of which he had previously (like almost every one else who never saw it) entertained but an indifferent idea. We wish that every stranger of distinction who visited us, would take a similar excursion; the importance of this excellent inland communication would then be more generally and better understood than it appears to have been.

MAY 25.

The U. S. schr. Hornet, Lieut. RAMAGE, arrived yesterday from Annapolis, where she left the Nonsuch, to wait for the President, who had not arrived, but was expected to be there the latter part of this week.

Capt. Roxby, supercargo of the schr. La Florestine, from Martinique, states, that a few days before they sailed, a privateer schr. about eighty tons burthen, under the Patriotic flag, had put into St. Pierres for a supply of water. Suspicion, however, as to her character, was excited, and an investigation took place, in the course of which it was ascertained that she had three commissioned Captains on board, viz. a Frenchman, a Spaniard, and an American, who were thereupon seized and put in confinement. A sailor also deposed, that the privateer was from New Orleans, and that on her passage she had captured a French brig, out of which she took eight passengers, men and women, and landed and left them on a desolate island near Cayenne. The next day a government schr. arrived from said island, with the before mentioned passengers, and the consequence was, that the three Captains and their crew were ordered into close confinement on shore, to await their trial, which would come on in a few days after the La Florestine sailed.

SHAVERS NURSED BY BANKERS.

If indeed any of those pests of society, called Shavers, (says the American Watchman) who fatten on the sufferings of the honest and industrious, are pampered by any of those institutions which were intended for public accommodation,—we wonder not that the generous spirit of Mr. Niles is aroused—as appears by the following article, among others:

EXTRACT FROM NILES' REGISTER.

'I assure the distant readers of the Register of an unhesitating belief that the Banks of Baltimore are as solvent as any in the country, even as the Bank of the United States. But several of them (as is the case every where else) are managed by directors who traffic with each other for seats at their boards, and really buy and sell votes like common merchandize. To two of the Baltimore Banks I give this serious caution; that if they do not refrain from discounting, for certain Shavers, the very notes that they refuse to steady mechanics and moderate dealers, I will ear lug them forth before the public, by name, and bring the cause to issue, if they please, before a Jury of my fellow citizens. I dare do this, and I pledge myself that I will do it, if these Harpies are much longer enabled to influence the Banks alluded to in the case just stated. If the people will not support me in this, let them be shaved!'

"The German Bank of Wooster," Ohio, has stopped payment.

The notes of "The Farmers Bank of Canton" are refused at Cincinnati.

"This is the beginning of evil." Woe, woe, woe, to the inhabitants of the West. One woe has come upon you; but FIFTY more woes are in reserve. Ky. Argus.

The Commissioners appointed to ascertain what damages will be sustained by the owners of property, by reason of the opening and extension of Pratt street, under the act of last session, filed their report with the Clerk of Baltimore County Court yesterday; the amount of damages, as ascertained and certified by them, is $146,921; of which, one third, or $48,974, is to be paid out of the city treasury; the remaining two thirds has been assessed by the Commissioners on those individuals whose property will be benefited by opening the street.

Balt. Fed. Gaz.

Doctor JOSEPH KENT, a firm Republican, has been publicly announced as a candidate to represent in Congress, the district composing Anne-Arundel and Prince George's, in this state; and it is confidently believed he will supplant the present federal incumbent, Mr. HERBERT.

Balt. Pat.

General Jackson, it is said, has notified the governor of Pensacola of his wish to transport to the head of the Bay of Escambia, a supply of provisions for the American troops in that quarter; and that he shall regard his refusal as an act of hostility. Georgia Journal.

ROTATION.

We have repeatedly taken occasion to deprecate the weak policy of this state in changing her representation to Congress at the expiration of each term. In the next Congress we shall have but three members out of twenty-seven, who have ever before had a seat in that body, viz:—Messrs. Wendover, Taylor, and Storrs. This system of rotation forever keeps this state in the back ground in national legislation, for want of men of experience. We never shall have our share of influence there, until we adopt a more stable course. Albany Reg.

The excavation has been commenced, preparatory to laying the foundation of the Centre of the Capitol of the United States.

Wash. City Gaz.

The Winyaw Intelligencer, of Georgetown, S. C. asserts, that a planter of that neighborhood realized 100,000 dollars from his crop of Rice the last year.

The celebrated LORENZO DOW sailed from New York for Liverpool, on the 21st ult. in the ship Atlantic.

FROM THE ALBANY ARGUS.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT.

We recollect to have read in one of the literary publications, an account of a new chemical process of cleaning flax, without the ordinary trouble of rotting, which improved its texture and strength, increased the quantity, and saved besides, the expence of bleaching Dr Stewart of this city, has kindly left at this office, a specimen of flax prepared by this new process, which he received from his correspondent in England. Its texture is as fine and as soft as silk, the firbes are remarkably strong and white, slightly tinged with yellow.

The flax, by this process, may be prepared for the manufacturer, the day it is pulled in the field—though it is necessary to pull it as soon as the seed has ripened sufficient to germinate. The linen company of Ireland, have awarded to the ingenious discoverer their first premium of £5000.

FROM A ST LOUIS PAPER OF FEB 27.

MINES OF MISSOURI.

When Mr. Branbury, the celebrated botanist and mineralogist, explored this territory (in 1811) he discovered at the mines, in Washington county, an immenes body of zinc ores mixed with the lead mineral Mr B remarked to the editor of this paper, that the bases of zinc, so abundant in this territory, were very little known, but would at no distant period, become one of the staples of our country.

Malleable zinc in sheets, calculated for covering houses, gutter leaders, lining cisterns or other vessels, is much used in the eastern states—it is not subject to corrosion by the weather, nor cracked by the sun, as has been experienced of copper and other metals. We hope to see the zinc of Missouri prepared not only for domestic purposes, but for exportation.

BOSTON, May 26.

HONORABLE RECORD

It is said, a very large proportion of the veteran claimants of military pensions under the late law of the United States are of Massachusetts. Very probable.—of 283,137 men, regulars and militia, engaged in the glorious War of Independence, 83 162 were furnished by Massachusetts—making nearly three tenths of the whole army. Boston Centinel

Money will be transmitted, whenever a receipt for the sum due, or, where the amount is not ascertained, a receipt in blank, shall be forwarded to the Treasury Department.

Treasury Department,

26th May, 1818.

DURING the last session of Congress, the House of Representatives adopted a Resolution, of which the following is a copy, viz.

In the House of Representatives of the United States, March 30, 1818.

RESOLVED, That the Secretary of the Treasury be requested to prepare and report to this House, at their next session, a plan for the application of such means as are within the power of Congress, to the purpose of opening and improving roads, and making canals; together with a statement of the undertakings of that nature, which, as objects of public improvement, may require and deserve the aid of government; and also a statement of works, of the nature above mentioned, which have been commenced, the progress which has been made in them, the means and prospect of their being completed, the public improvements carried on by states, or by companies, or incorporations which have been associated for such purposes, to which it may be deemed expedient to subscribe, or afford assistance, the terms and conditions of such associations, and the state of their funds; and such information as, in the opinion of the Secretary, shall be material, in relation to the objects of this resolution.—Attest,

THOS. DOUGHERTY,
Clerk House of Representatives.

To enable the Secretary of the Treasury to comply with the important requisitions of the foregoing resolution, all companies or incorporations, associated for opening roads and making canals, which they may respectively conceive require and deserve the aid of the government, are invited to furnish this department with such information concerning their respective undertakings, as is required by the resolution, and which may be necessary to bring their claims to the patronage of the government before the Congress of the United States, at the commencement of their next session.

Where a canal or road has been commenced, the communication ought to state distinctly the dimensions of the work; the nature of the soil and face of the country through which it is to pass; its greatest elevation and depression, and mean level; the progress which has been made; the expense incurred, and the whole probable expense, estimated upon the experience acquired in the execution of the undertaking.

In all cases of canals, the number and dimensions of the locks; the mean quantity of earth to be removed per mile; the nature and extent of the navigation to which they are to be connected, should be distinctly made known.

In every case, the facility of obtaining materials for the construction of roads, bridges and locks, should be stated. The acts of incorporation, or the articles of association; the by-laws which have been enacted; the amount of the fund authorised or agreed to be subscribed; the sum actually subscribed; the amount paid in; the sum expended; the amount remaining on hand; and the means and probability of enforcing the payment of the balance; should invariably be stated in every communication. And generally every kind of information which can shed light upon the undertaking.

Secretary of the Treasury.
