EASTON:

Tuesday Morning, August 29.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 26.

NAVY YARD.—Agreeably to the act passed at the last session of Congress, providing for that object, the U. S. Cutter Florida, Lieut. Com. Piercy, has arrived here for the purpose of commencing the surveys and examinations of the harbor of Baltimore, with a view to ascertain its facilities for the establishment of a Navy Yard. These surveys are to be made under the direction of Captain SPENCE, Commander of this Naval Station. Am.

We are gratified to learn that THOMAS KENNEDY, Esq. has been appointed Post Master at Hagerstown.

It is stated in a western paper that Isaac B. Desha died on the 13th inst. in consequence of the wound inflicted on himself someweeks since

FROM LISBON.—The brig Draco, Pryce, at New York, from Lisbon, whence she sailed on the 23d July, reports that the British frigate Diamond, with Sir Charles Stuart on board, bearer of despatches from the emperor, had arrived there from the Brazils Sir Charles was also the bearer of the new Constitution from Don Pedro to his Portugese subjects. At first the Constitution was well received, but a few days afterwards several regiments, including their officers, mutinied, declaring they would not submit to it.—Before the mutiny was quelled several lives were lost, and the remainder of the mutineers taken prisoners and put in close confinement. Four or five ships of the line, five frigates, and some gun brigs, were in the harbor.

The National Intelligencer relates the following accident, which occurred to the stage on its way from Washington to Frederick, on Tuesday last:—About six miles above Georgetown, the strap, by which the driver's seat was supported, gave way, and he losing all power of controlling the horses, they ran off. Seeing that the horses were running, and that the driver had lost the reins, the passengers naturally became very much alarmed: Part of them jumped out, and part remained. of those who jumped out, PETER R. BEVERLEY, Esq. of Alexandria, was most severely injured, being said to have fractured his skull. Another of them had his leg broke. The reins caught to some part of carriage or harness, and carriage was stopped without the least injury having been sustained by those who remained in the carriage.

The following Circular, recently addressed by the Secretary of the Treasury to the Collectors of the Customs, is made public from a belief that it will be satisfactory to many, as well merchants as others, to be informed of the regulation which it contains.

[CIRCULAR.]

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Aug. 5, 1826.

SIR: It having been represented to this Department by the American Philosophical Society, at Philadelphia, that, (for want of advice from the shippers,) it has often happened that books and packets of various descriptions, arriving to the address of that Institution, have lain for several months in the Custom House Stores before the knowledge of their arrival was obtained; I have to request, that, for the future, the officers having the custody of such articles be directed to notify, by mail or otherwise, the Society of their arrival, in case they be not claimed in a reasonable time.

This request must also be considered as applying to all other Literary Institutions, and to private individuals, for whose use books and packets arrive from abroad, under similar circumstances.

And it is deemed proper that the rule should likewise be extended to unclaimed packages of every description whatever, since it is to be presumed that imported articles would rarely, if ever, remain unclaimed, if the parties for whom they are intended were duly apprized of the fact of their arrival. Hence, it is desirable that the fact should be made known, wherever practicable, to the owner, agent, or consignee, in the manner above stated.

I remain, respectfully your obedient servant,

RICHARD RUSH.

Among the instructions which have been pressed upon the attention of post masters by the able and energetic officer who presides at the head of the General Department, with so much credit to himself and advantage to his country, they have been particularly charged to inform publishers of newspapers whenever their journals are sent to persons who do not take them from the post office. This instruction embraced the two-fold object of relieving the mails of a heavy burthen of dead papers, and at the same time of protecting the printer from losses which it was known had too frequently occurred.—Notwithstanding the earnest manner in which this duty has been urged and reiterated by the Post Master General, printers often find to their loss, that the interior post masters pay little or no attention to the matter, and in many instances disregard it altogether. We have an example of this kind of delinquency stated in the last Cumberland Advocate, and we have no doubt that as soon as the fact comes to the knowledge of the Post Master General, the dismissal of the negligent deputy will,—as assuredly it should,—immediately follow:— [Bal. Am.

'The Baltimore Patriot' has been sent to this place for more than two years, directed to a gentleman, who resides out of this state, and not within fifty miles of this place, which is disposed of for the postage.

'The Torch Light' printed at Hagers town, has been sent here since the spring of 1825, directed to a person, residing upwards of 20 miles distant—this paper is also sold for the postage.

'The Bedford Gazette'—'The Somerst Whig'—'The Republican Star' printed at Easton, Md.—'The Frederick-Town Herald' and 'Winchester Gazette,' are all bartered off in a similar manner.—To this number we think we may add the name of a religious periodical, printed at Boston.'

FIRE AT AUGUSTA.

A letter from Augusta, Georgia, of the 9th inst. says—"We last night had a tremendous fire. The Cotton warehouse occupied by Edw. Camfield & Co. (formerly by John Burton,) was struck with lightning at about 10, and at 11, the warehouse together with about 2100 bales of cotton were entirely consumed. About 50 bales of cotton was all that could be saved. The two story houses opposite and adjoining Slaughter & Labuzan's Cotton Warehouse, were both on fire, but the flames were extinguished without much damage—otherwise the Planter's Hotel must have caught, the consequence then would have been that the whole square would have been destroyed. The Cotton destroyed was principally owned by the Planters.

CAROLINE COUNTY, August, 1826.

To the Editor of the Star:

SIR—I have observed in the Easton Gazette of the 19th inst. a publication addressed to James Sangston, Esq. and signed a Citizen. Without much sagacity or any extraordinary depth of observation, it is very easy to discover from what source this publication came. The Citizen commences very Philosophically, but notwithstanding his knowledge of ethics, he looses sight of the main principle (truth;) for the very first assertion he makes, with regard to our caucusing, is a most notorious and palpable lie.—As it is well known that the Democratic ticket of 1824 was formed by general meeting at Denton, and not by districts as the Citizen asserts. Sir, I can assert with safety, that Mr. Sangston was not in 1824, or at any time since, unfriendly to district meetings; but on the contrary, has always been in favor to them. I can also venture the assertion that Mr. Sangston never did pronounce Elijah Barwick "an apostate," yet at the same time I know that Mr. Sangston disapproved of his political conduct in 1824, as much as a man possibly could. With regard to the observations respecting Mr. Sangston's conduct on the election of Register of Wills, (of which the Citizen gives a History,) I can only say is false without farther comment. I know sir that Mr. Sangston did not support Edward Barwick to the exclusion of William M. Hardcastle, but on the contrary, made use of his best exertions for Mr. Hardcastle's success.—This charge is so grossly false and contemptible, that I shall take no farther notice of it. I know sir that in the fall of 1825, Mr. Sangston made no exertion for a general meeting, and that he was opposed to one. That Mr. Sangston has repeatedly solicited Mr. Thomas Carter to come forward as a candidate, I am sure he will not pretend to deny; should he do so, he would forfeit forever my friendship. I am sure there are few men for whom Mr. S. has a higher regard than for Mr. Carter—and he can answer the question whether Mr. Sangston or any of his friends, ever required a pledge of him either directly or indirectly. As to the purgation and regeneration of Elijah Barwick, I can only say, I do not know so much as "a Citizen" asserts—He possibly may be a political confessor, and may have given Elijah (as he calls him,) entire absolution. But if he was purged and regenerated" as the Citizen asserts, Mr. Sangston was certainly justifiable in receiving him as "a faithful servant in the cause," The Citizen sir, has made some very great discoveries—He has told Mr. Sangston that he "was conscious of his own designs," and that he has a particular object in view as elector of the Senate. But sir a Citizen has made these discoveries too late, for I am sure that it has been long understood, that no man could have a design without being conscious of it, and that no man does any act without having some object in view. Mr. Sangston's object is, what the constitution and form of government of Maryland points out to an elector. And now Mr. Citizen as you have taken the liberty of thus addressing yourself to Mr. Sangston, and making some allusions to his friends, let me take the liberty of giving you a little friendly advice. Whenever hereafter you write a piece, strive to tell the truth in the commencement; and should your propensity for falsehood be so great that you cannot restrain it, let it waste its force in the latter part of your piece. If a man is ever caught in an act of villainy, let his repentance and reformation be ever so great, he will ever be liable to be suspected. You have told a falsehood in the early part of your publication, and even should what you tell afterwards be true, it will require something more than your bare assertion to support it; for recollect sir, that this is not the first falsehood that you have had the hardihood to publish. I should think Mr. Citizen that you have by this time, seen enough in our Courts of Justice to convince you that where a man tells a notorious falsehood, he is very likely to be lected in it. I should also think that you would pay more respect to the venerable and respectable parents who brought you up, than to suffer yourself to be thus caught in such a glaring falsehood. If you are a Citizen I know not where you can claim your Citizenship, unless Monchauson may have established a republic of liars—if so, I advise you to emigrate thence as soon as possible, for I am sure you would stand a good chance of being his Secretary of State.—But before you go, I would also advise you to clear your spectacles; for as you are near sighted you might make more mistakes, and tell more falsehoods than you really intended, and thereby excite the jealousy of Monchauson, and get yourself kicked out of the country. You have probably heard that a certain Tom Pepper was kicked out of the lower regions because he out lied his satanic majesty. I would also advise you to make yourself a more complete Dandy than you are, for this reason; that Monchauson has travelled a great deal, and knows the different manners, customs and fashions of the world, and would therefore be able to form an opinion of the kind of society with which you have associated. Also take with you your Dame Vallette as a substitute, in case you should not succeed, as you know he is very popular among the sable fair sex; and you are so unfortunate as not to be popular with the sable or fair of any sex, Monchauson excepted. I would advise you not to throw off your mask, if you claim citizenship in Caroline county, for although there may be some base enough to join you in secret falsehood, yet they lack the hardihood which you have exhibited in your assertion; that in 1824, district caucuses were held in three several places in this county. Sir as I have but little time to spare from my business, I shall at present conclude, but may probably hereafter give you something more on the subject.

A FRIEND TO TRUTH.

N. B. There is a publication signed "a Citizen" in the Easton Gazette of the 5th inst. which is so contemptible, that it entirely escaped my notice. I am authorised to say, that in case Mr. Sangston should be elected, he holds himself bound to obey the instructions of a majority of the people of the County, should they instruct him either by district meetings or a general meeting.

JOHN NEAL.

This recreant continues to pander for the craving after abuse of America in the English journals, and to prostitute truth and integrity for the miserable object of passing himself off as a smart and satirical writer. In a number of the Monthly Magazine for July he has a continuation of his sketches of eminent Americans. He has taken up the painters, and is possessed of sufficient discrimination to decide that "altho' Sir Benjamin West has been called a great painter not only in the United States but in every part of Europe—nevertheless he is not a great painter." Such file biting vipers may excite our risibles, but they necessarily produce their own destruction. This writer also asserts that West's splendid painting in Philadelphia, of Christ healing the sick, is a huge thing, & that it is a copy. His temperament is opposite to that of his countrymen, but his abuse is quite as beneficial as his eulogy would prove to the literary reputation of his native land. [N. York Times.

TAKING TIME BY THE FORELOCK.

Catherine Tudor, at the funeral of her first husband, (John Salisbury,) was led to church by Sir Richard Clough, and from church by Morris Wynn, of Guedir, who whispered to her his wish of being her second. She refused him civilly, and informed him that she had accepted the proposals of Sir Richard Clough, in her way to church; but assured him that if she buried Sir Richard he might depend on being her 3d which really was the case.

[London Times.

The Kentucky Gazette relates an unfortunate occurrence which took place in the streets of Lexington, on the night of the 9th inst. Some young men, who had drank freely, and were making a great noise in the streets, were met by the watch, when a rencounter took place between the captain of the watch and Thomas, Park, one of the young men; after some blows had passed between them, Park fired a pistol at the captain which missed him, and entered the breast of WILLIAM M'BEE, one of the young men with Park, and died instantly. Park has left the place.

The Montreal papers announce the arrival in that city of a party of men who had accompanied Captain Franklin as far as the Frozen Ocean, bringing letters from Bear Lake to the 26th January. Capt. F. and his party were then in high spirits, anxiously waiting the opening of the navigation, in order to resume their expedition. The Thermometer had only been at 47 below zero. We understand, by this conveyance, that the returns of furs are considered good throughout the whole of the Indian country. The settlement at Red River has suffered severely by the overflowing of the River last spring, the whole country being completely inundated, and the buildings carried away.

FROM HALIFAX.

By the British Packet Swallow, from Halifax, we have papers to the 14th August, which state that the principal part of the wheat and oat harvest had been destroyed by the late heavy rains, succeeding a distressing drought. The crop of hay was almost entirely cut off.

BUFFALO, August 15.

LEWISTON STEAM-MILL BURNT.—We regret to learn that the Steam-Mill at Lewiston, Niagara county, was burnt on the evening of the 7th inst. The fire is supposed to have originated from friction. It contained 3000 bushels of wheat, a large quantity of flour and two double carding machines. The loss is estimated at about $14,000, $6,000 of which was insured at the Western Fire Insurance Company, at Canandaigua, a few days before the accident.—We learn that the enterprising proprietors are making preparations to rebuild the mill.

YANKEE DISCOVERIES& INVENTIONS.—It is stated in the papers that an eastern man has discovered that sweet oil, rubbed upon brass furniture, and upon horses, will effectually prevent flies from soiling the one or biting the other. The discoveries of our eastern friends, who are a thinking people, and always experimenting, are oft times of a very beneficial nature, though sometimes they relate to small and apparently trifling matters. Any attempt, however, to relieve that noble animal, the horse, from any portion of the torments to which he is subjected among us, during the warm season, must excite the plaudit of every humane and generous heart. [Albany Chronicle.

NEEDLE MAKING.

I will attempt to give you some idea of needle making. The wire is first cut into suitable lengths for two needles. Each end is sharpened by taking fifty or a hundred between the fingers and rolling the points on a revolving stone. The needle is then placed on a die, exactly in the centre, and one blow makes two eyes, and, at the same time, cuts the wire nearly in two, between the eyes. This was done with so much rapidity that I asked how many times the die fell to make the eyes, not perceiving that the boy took up a new one at every blow. Two needles are then parted, and you have two in an unfinished state. Tempering them is then the next process. The needles while heated red hot, are thrown into cold water, and afterwards are brought to a spring temper, by being rolled in plates of hot iron. Each is then filed at the eye; and, last of all, receives the polish in the same way as it is pointed, only on a finer stone. In the last room I visited were 15 or 20 young girls, from ten to fourteen years of age, busy in counting them out putting them into papers, and labelling them. The principal part of the work is done by boys, who from their appearance, must be poorly paid.

SIR WALTER SCOTT.

The first delivery of M. Gasselm's new edition of Sir Walter Scott's work, in 18mo. has appeared in Paris, and does much credit to the French editor. This delivery contains Tales of My Landlord, The Black Dwarf, & Old Mortality. It is accompanied by a fac simile of the following letter of Sir Walter Scott to the translator, denying that he is the author:

"To M Defauconpret, London—

"Sir—I am favoured with your letter, which proceeds on the erroneous supposition that I am the author of Waverly and the other Novels and Tales which you have translated into French. But, as this proceeds on a mistake, though a very general one, I have no title whatsoever either to become a party to any arrangement to which that author or his works may be concerned, or to accept the very handsome compliment which you design for him.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

WALTER SCOTT.

A YEAR'S BUSINESS.

Thirty-one thousand eight hundred and twelve barrels of flour were manufactured at Mr. H. Ely's mills, in this village, during the twelve months ending on the 9th inst. Mr. E. at our request has obligingly furnished us with this statement, and we publish it for the information of those numerous visitors to our extensive and flourishing establishments.—We presume that the quantity of flour made at the several mills in this village the last year, is not less than 150,000 barrels [Rochester Telegraph.

QUICK WORK.

We have a boy in the office, who set up in about 12 hours, one day last week, the type which fill a page of this paper. There are about what printers call 13,000 m's in a page; which, considering he has not been at the business but about 18 months, is highly creditable to his activity, and we publish this to stimulate others to follow his example. It may be proper to mention, that the matter was free from errors, not a single doublet, and but a few turned letters. [Goshen Republican.

POROSITY OF GLASS.

Mr. Campbell, in his voyage to the south of Africa, demonstrated this fact by hermetically sealing 2 spherical bottles, which sunk in the sea to the depth of 1,200 feet by attaching them a great weight of lead. Ten men were one quarter of an hour in rasing them again, and they came up full of water, which had been forced through the glass.

A FIAMLY CONNEXION.

A negro passing along Fleet-st. was astonished at hearing a voice call out, "How d' ye do, Massa Mungo, how d'ye do, Snow ball? and on looking up, observed it proceeded from a gilt cage 'Aha massa parrot,' said Blackee, "you great man here, you live in gold house now, but me know your fader very well; he live in bush."

A land Turtle was found by a boy on the farm of George Hunter, in Newton, Delaware county, a few days ago, marked I. H. 1761—he lived 15 years under the protection of a King's subjects and has lived to see the Jubilee of American Independence.

TO FARMERS.—Several cattle have recently died in Connecticut from eating the leaves of the wild cherry tree. A farmer in Pennsylvania a short time since lost six fine cows, from the same cause: they died in half an hour from the time they ate the leaves.

It is stated, says the Baltimore American, that President Biddle, of the U. S. Bank, is on a tour of examination among the branches of that institution. He is accompanied by two officers of the bank, and was in Providence last week. Much satisfaction was expressed in regard to the management of the concerns of the Branch there. He is now in Boston.

A Charleston, S. C. paper, calculates that $500,000 are drained from the south every summer, and expended by gentlemen visiting the springs, &c. at the north. There were 135 deaths in New York last week—31 men, 19 women, 45 boys, 40 girls. In Phtladelphia last week there were 82 deaths.

PARTRIDGES.

A farmer in East Goshen, told us, that in mowing his first, crop, he broke up partidge's nests, having in all one hundred and twenty four eggs. Every possible care was taken not to disturb them, but nests, having that number of eggs were, unintentionally and unavoidably so disturbed that the birds forsook them. They are this year uncommonly abundant and "Bob White" salutes the ear of the traveller, every half mile of his ride through the country.

BOOT & SHOE STORE.

WILLIAM WHITE,

OPPOSITE THE COURT HOUSE, [EASTON.]

HAS just received from BALTIMORE, a handsome supply of Ladies and Children's boots and shoes, which he will dispose of very low for CASH.—He has also received from NEW-YORK a large supply of red and black morocco skins of the first and second quality, which he will either manufacture into boots and shoes or dispose of low for CASH, by the single skin or by the dozen.

W. H. finds he can purchase Boots & Shoes on much lower terms for cash, in either of the above cities, than even on a short credit—he has therefore determined to sell for cash alone, and invites all those who are in want of articles in his line, and who have the needful, to give him a call, examine for themselves, and he has no doubt of their purchasing.

Cooking Machine

The great utility of this apparatus is, that it is peculiarly adapted to the necessities of nurses, single ladies and gentlemen, travellers, small and large families, shooting & fishing parties, &c. and beside, in summer, when the heat is so disagreeable to all, particularly the sick, gruels, &c. can be prepared in a very short time, without much inconvenience. To masters of vessels it is equally a great desideratum, on account of its convenience; and moreover, it is a subject of considerable economy, for three-fourths of a cent's worth of fuel is sufficient to cook whatever may be required for two individuals; for more a proportionably greater quantity.

N. B. Persons purchasing individual rights, will only be entitled to use these machines in their own families. And the right shall be good only when signed by the inventor.

For further particulars apply as above.
