APOLLO'S FOUNT.

SONG.

NEW ORLEANS,

OR, THE

Hunters of Kentucky.

[BY S. WOODSWORTH.]

Ye gentlemen and ladies fair,
Who grace this famous city,
Just listen if ye've time to spare,
While I rehearse my ditty;
And for an opportunity,
Conceive yourselves quite lucky,
For 'tis not often here you see,
A hunter from Kentucky.
Oh! Kentucky, the hunters of Kentucky,
The Hunters of Kentucky.

We're a hardy free born race,
Each man to fear a stranger,
Whate'er the game we join in chase,
Despising toil and danger;
And if a daring foe annoys,
Whate'er his strength and forces,
We'll show him that Kentucky boys
Are "alligator horses"
Oh! Kentucky, &c.

I s'pose you've read it in the prints,
How Packenham attempted
To make Old Hickory JACKSON wince,
But soon his scheme repented;
For we with rifles ready cocked,
Thought such occasion lucky,
And soon around the geneal flocked
The hunters of Kentucky.
Oh! Kentucky, &c.

You've read I s'pose how New Orleans
Is famed for wealth and beauty—
There's girls of every hue it seems,
From snowy white to sooty;
So Packenham he made his brags,
If he in fight was lucky;
He'd have their girls and cotton bags,
In spite of Old Kentucky.
Oh! Kentucky, &c.

But JACKSON, he was wide awake,
And was'nt scared at trifles;
For well he knew what aim to take,
With our Kentucky rifles;
So he led us down to Cyprus swamp,
The ground was low and mucky;
There stood John Bull in martial pomp,
And here was old Kentucky.
Oh! Kentucky, &c.

A bank was raised to hide our breast,
Not that we thought of dying,
But that we always like to rest,
Unless the game is flying;
Behind it stood our little force—
None wished it to be greater,
For every man was half a horse,
And half an alligator.
Oh! Kentucky, &c.

They did not our patience tire,
Before they shewed their faces—
We did not choose to waste our fire,
So snugly kept their places;
But when so near we saw them wink,
We thought it time to stop'em,
And 'twould have done you good I think,
To see Kentucky pop'em.
Oh! Kentucky, &c.

They found at last, 'twas vain to fight
Where lead was all their booty,
And so they wisely took to flight,
And left us all our beauty,
And now if danger e'er annoys,
Remember what our trade is;
Just send for us Kentucky boys,
And we,ll protect ye, Ladies.
Oh! Kentucky, &c.

SOPHIA.

OR, THE GIRL OF THE PINE WOODS.

[Continued from the Star of the 12th of Sept. last—Chap. II, has not come to hand, but expect to get it.]

Chapter III.

Sophia had told her mother concerning the rattle snake, and although Mrs. Thomson was very far from being a superstitious woman, yet she could not but draw some favorable conclusions in her own mind from the circumstance that had taken place.

A serpent was the similitude of deception, of seduction of enmity, in fact the enemy of mankind was called that old serpent the devil. A serpent had been destroyed by a stranger, which, probably would have destroyed her daughter; but her daughter would not have been exposed had it not been for the stranger. It was in assisting him that she became jeopardised, still she might have been strolling that way, and might have been bitten by the snake, if the stranger had never appeared. At any rate the facts were the same; the snake was killed by him, and who could say it was not a favorable omen.

"Who knows, my daughter, said she, but that this stranger is at least the harbinger of some good news for us? I think I have seen him before; and his offering in the first place to pay the debt and release your father, is a strong proof that he feels more than common sympathy for our misfortunes."

"I hope, said the girl that it may be as you predict; he is the finest looking man I ever saw; he appears so sensible, so modest; and how glad was I to see him drag that ugly fellow out of doors."

"Yes, my dear, and it was in our defence, for which I fear he will meet with trouble." "I heard them talking together at the corner of the house, (says Sophia) and I thought they were contriving how to way lay him, and I am afraid, they will take his life.

"Let us pray for his safety, and for a termination of our domestic troubles," said the mother; and kneeling down with her son and daughter by her side the girl read the evening prayers for a family, from the church common prayer book; and at the end her mother made a short extemporaneous prayer in behalf of the stranger, and as she closed her petition Sophia pronounced Amen, with such an unusual emphasis that she was somewhat frightened at the echo of her own voice in so loud a sound.

They arose from their humble posture, at the same moment a rap was heard at the door, at which they all started & in comes, at the boy's opening the door, the person for whom they had been addressing the father of mercies; the stranger who had returned from the red mills.

"We have just been conversing about you" says Mrs. Thomson, "Yes and praying for me too, returned the stranger, which I overheard as I came up to the door." The ladies both blushed; for blushes will sometimes crimson the cheeks of purest devotional being, if they spring from the warmth of devotion itself, as the beams of the heavenly sun open and expand the buds of the morning rose.

"Yes sir, rejoined the old lady, we were alarmed for your safety, and feeling for the interest you seemed to take in our forlorn situation, we put up our feeble prayers for your success in whatever laudable enterprise you are engaged." "I thank you madam, replied he; I can stay but a moment; where are those ruffians that I saw here?" "They went towards the village sir, and we fear they are determined to injure you; perhaps they will attack you from an ambuscade." "Never fear that, said he, I am well prepared for such fellows. In the mean time, comfort yourselves with the hope of better times." So saying he bid them good night, and was off in a moment.

They looked from the window, but saw nothing except the sparks of fire which his horse's shoes struck from the flinty rock, over which he bounded with a full gallop, as they judged from the sound of his feet. "Heaven preserve him," cried the mother. The daughter looked pale, and faintly, uttered I hope so."

During this time the lawyer had been to the village and hired two more men, armed with muskets and all five had planted themselves in the pine woods, at proper distances, to seize the robber as they called him, dead or alive; for they understood from another man in the village, who came with the stranger and who they supposed was his accomplice in robbery, as he would give no direct answer to the enquiries, that the stranger would positively be there that night.

It was about ten o'clock when our stranger left the log hut, and as he entered the pine woods an awful black cloud hovered over the tops of the gloomy pines, rendered visible by now and then a flash of lightning, and beginning, to wave briskly to and fro by the gusts of wind that began to roar among the branches, with claps of heavy bellowing thunder.

He had proceeded little more than half way through the woods when he found his horse suddenly stopped by two men seizing him by the bridle, one on each side. He drew a pistol from his pocket, shot one, who fell, and knocked down the other with the but of his whip, as he put spurs to his horse; but had not gone but a few rods when two muskets were fired at him, the ball from one went through the crown of his hat, and the other cut a button from his vest but did not injure him. At the same instant all three sprang in the path before him, and with the buts of heir muskets laid his horse over the head, and staggered him, so that with the others behind, who had now come up, being recovered from their wounds, they succeeded after a violent struggle in tearing the stranger from his horse, who had discharged another pistol among them without much effect, and had fought most desperately with his heavy loaded whip, and given several severe contutions. They made him their prisoner, pinioned his arms behind him, and led him in triumph to the village, where they secured him under keepers until morning.

LARGE EGG PLANT.

From the Fredericktown Examiner.

An egg plant, (Solanum,) was raised in the garden of the Rev. John Dubois, at Mount St. Mary's, near Emmittsburg, which, in circumference, is 28 inches, its weight seven and a half pounds. Though by no means as large as some this Reverend gentleman has raised, it is sufficiently of the mammoth growth, to entitle it to the denomination of a curiosity, and to the inspection of those who delight in viewing the progress of industry.

A sweet potatoe, from Somerset county, was shown to the editor of the American Farmer last week, which weighed 8 pounds two ounces.

BEAT THIS WHO CAN!—Was raised in the garden of Mr. Jacob Hummel, of Middlecreek in this county, last summer, and is now in the possession of Philip Seebold, Esq. of this place, A RADISH weighing 27 pounds, measuring twenty eight inches in circumference, and its length thirty inches.—Would not this stagger the cultivator of the Mammoth Radish raised in the vicinity of Greensburg, when he sees himself so much outdone by the rich gardens of Union!!—Union Times.

Admirable Legislation.—About 2 years ago, the British Parliament passed an act making it a high misdemeanor to rob orchards. This act is put in force with wonderful vigilance, recently, six little boys, 4 of whom were between 6 and 9 years of age, and two of them about ten, were taken up for stealing a couple of hat's full of pairs from the Reverend G. Chamberlains garden. They did not deny the fact, and were sentenced—the oldest to "three months on the treadmill—the next to two months—the four little ones to one month each!!! If these boys have a spark of sensibility they are ruined forever. If they have any talent they will make that talent a curse to their country: and who can blame them if they do? Four infants put to a treadmill for stealing a handful of pears and apples!! It is a foul disgrace to the English character.—Noah's Enq.
