APOLLO'S FOUNT.

EPICUREAN REMINISCENCES OF A SENTIMENTALIST.

From Hood's Comic Annual.

'Twas at Christmas I think, when I met with Miss Chase,
Yes for Morris had asked me to dine,—
And I thought I had never beheld such a face,
Or so noble a turkey and chine.

Placed close by her side, it made others quite wild,
With sheer envy to witness my luck,
How she blushed as I gave her some turtle and smil'd
As I afterwards offered some duck.

I looked and I languished, alas! to my cost,
Through three courses of dishes and meats:
Getting deeper in love—but my heart was quite lost,
When it came to the trifle and sweets!

With a rent-rool that told of my houses and land,
To her parents I told my designs—
And then to herself I presented my hand,
With a very fine pottle of pines!

I asked her to have me for weal or for woe,
And she did not object in the least;
I can't tell the date—but we married, I know
Just in time to have gave at the feast.

We went to ——, it certainly was the sea side,
For the next, the most blessed of morns,
I remember how fondly I gazed at my bride,
Sitting down to a plateful of prawns

O never may memory lose sight of that year,
But still hallow the time as it ought,
That season the 'grass' was remarkably dear,
And the peas at a guinea a quart!

So happy, like hours, our days seem'd to haste
A fond pair, such as poets have drawn,
So united in heart—so congenial in taste,
We were both of us partial to brawn!

A long life I looked for of bliss—with my bride,
But then Death—I ne'er dreamt about that!
Oh, there's nothing is certain in life, as I cried,
When my turbot eloped with the cat!

My dearest took ill at the turn of the year,
But the cause no physician could nab;
But something it seem'd like consumption, I fear,
It was just after supping on crab.

In vain she was doctor'd, in vain she was dosed,
Still her strength and her appetite pined,
She lost relish for what she had relish'd the most,
Even Salmon she deeply declined!

For months still I linger'd in hope and in doubt,
While her form it grew wasted and thin;
But the last dying spark of existence went out,
As the oysters were just coming in!

She died, and she left me the saddest of men!
To indulge in a widower's moan,
Oh, I felt all the powers of solitude then,
As I ate my first natives alone!

But when I beheld Virtue's friends in their cloaks,
And with sorrowful crape on their hats,
O my grief pour'd a flood! and the out-of-door folks
Were all crying—I think it was sprats!

MR. RHIND'S ARABIAN HORSES.

In the House of Representatives of the United States on Tuesday last, the following message was received from the President of the United States:

To the Congress of the United States:

I submit herewith to Congress a letter from Mr. Rhind, stating the circumstances under which he received the four Arabian Horses, that were brought by him to the United States from Turkey. This letter will enable Congress to decide what ought to be done with them.

ANDREW JACKSON.

The following is a copy of Mr. Rhind's letter:

WASHINGTON, 10th Dec. 1830.

Sir:—I think it proper to state the circumstances under which I became possessed of the Arabian Horses landed from the vessel in which I reached the United States from Turkey.

Finding, during my residence at Constantinople, that our Turkish friends were far behind us in many improvements, I suggested to the Ministers several, which were of great use to them; and after closing the business of the Negotiation, much of my time was occupied in giving them drafts, schemes and elucidations.—The Sultan, I understood, took great interest in these suggestions, and many inquiries were made of me, by his request, to all of which I afforded the best explanation in my power.

It being customary at that Court, for the person who negotiates a treaty, to remain there until the ratifications are exchanged, or by express assent of the Porte, to leave a person in his place, I was, therefore under the necessity of appointing Mr. Narvoni to that station, and presented him in that capacity to the Reis Effendi.

I shortly thereafter took final leave of the Turkish Ministers.

Finding that no vessel would leave Turkey for the United States prior to the first of September, I determined instead of remaining idle at Constantinople, to proceed to Odessa, a voyage of three days, and make the neceessary arrangements there for the reception of our vessels; having accomplished this, I returned to Constantinople on my way to Smyrna where I was to embark.

On reaching the Capital, I had several interviews and communications, with my former Turkish friends, and suggested other improvements in their system, very gratifying to them.

Being informed by the Reis Effendi, that permission would be granted me to export one or more Arabian horses; and conceiving, that whilst it would be a personal object to myself, it would also be a benefit to our country if I succeeded in conveying one to the United States, I visited the studs of many of the Nobility in order to select some, and was on the eve of closing for the purchase of two when the circumstance coming to the knowledge of the Sultan, he, on the 31st of August, directed four horses to be sent me in his name Although this was evidently not intended as a present to me in my official capacity, since the ministers were aware I could not accept them as such, still the gift was one that could not be returned without giving offence. Being well informed, that to refuse them would be considered an insult to the Sultan, and would doubtless be attended with injury to the interests of the United States, and Mr. Narvoni, as well as others, assured me, that I must take them away from Constantinople, if I should cut their throats and throw them overboard the next day! I was consequently obliged to take them, and relinquish the purchase of those I had selected. I immediately had the four horses appraised by competent judges, on the spot, and took them with me to Smyrna.

Having no funds of the United States, or the means of raising them to pay for their expenses and passage to America: I shipped them as a commercial adventure in the name of, and for account of the owners of the vessel in which they came, and for whom I had secured an individual credit on London previous to leaving the U. States. The horses are consequently in their possession, but if the U. S. have a claim for their value, I presume those gentlemen will pay it over, should they sell for more than the expenses attending them, which of course are very considerable.

So far as regards myself, I am ready to transfer to the United States, any right title, or interest I may have in them, should it be required.

With great respect, I have the honour to be
Your obedient servant,
CHAS. RHIND.

To the PRESIDENT of the U. States.

The subject was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

ENTERTAINMENT AT THE MANSION HOUSE.

On Friday a very splendid entertainment was given by the Lord Mayor on the occasion of the swearing in of the new Alderman of Farrington Within Ward, to between 60 and 70 distinguished persons, amongst whom were the Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary, from the United States of America to the Court of Russia His Majesty's Attorney General, Baron Bolland, and several of the Aldermen and leading Members of the Corporation.

His Lordship, in proposing the health of the American Ambassador to Russia, said that he was happy in the recollection that it had been always the pride of the possessors of the Mansion House to entertain any distinguished foreigner who might visit the city, and he had now the happiness of tendering the hospitalities of that house to an eminent and able foreigner, who sat by his side. Foreigner, did he say? No, he would call him brother—for in speaking of an American, he was speaking of one who was descended from the same parentage, who spoke the same language, and who possessed the same love of liberty which was the birthright of every Briton—(cheers)

Mr. Randolph returned thanks in a very elegant speech. He was peculiarly happy in being associated with the citizens of the great metropolis of England, who as well as those of his own country, were descended from the Anglo-Saxons, who spoke the same language, which was so extensively and vigorously spread over both hemispheres, and which would continue to increase and to be used as the vehicle of the grand inspirations of liberty when every other language should be consigned to the tomb, and be only found amongst the recollections of posterity—(hears) With every wish for the prosperity of the city of London, and with the deepest sense of gratitude for the hospitality and friendship with which his Lordship had honored him, he returned thanks for America, and for himself, one of the humblest of its citizens—(cheers.)

From the Portland Courier.

A POTATOE STORY.

The Portland Argus states that Mr. James Heald, of Winslow, Me. has raised the present year, 10 potatoes weighing 68 lbs. and measuring one bushel; and one ear of corn, having on it 578 kernels, 50 of which filled half a pint measure!

PORTLAND, Oct. 22, 1830.

Dear Cousin—As soon as you get this, I want you to go right over to Winslow—you know where Winslow is, over there on Kenebeck river—I want you to be spry, and tackle as quick as you can, and make haste over there, and enquire for one Mr. Jim Heald, and buy one of his great potatoes, and a few kernels of his everlasting big corn. For the Argus says that are Mr. Heald has raised this year, ten potatoes weighing 68 pounds, and measuring one bushel; and one year of corn having on it 578 kernels, 50 of which filled a half pint measure.'

Now Ephraim, if that are's true, and I can get hold of some of the seed, I'm determined to come right home and go to farming, for all being governor or any thing else. I've been figuring out up a little, and it beats all you ever heard of. Only think, ten potatoes make a bushel. Now with middling luck, especially if you hoe 'em well, you can commonly raise 50 potatoes in a hill: that's five bushels. Well, spose you plant a hundred hills just round the house: that wouldn't be much work; you could hoe 'em before breakfast any time—that would make 500 bushels; that is, one hundred bushels for your own use, and four hundred bushels to sell. Would'nt that be making money like dirt? And the corn is about equal to it. Fifty of 'em fill a half pint—five hundred and seventy-eight grows on one ear—that's about three quarts. Now a clever size hill ought to have as many as a dozen ears on it; that would be rather more than a bushel of corn on one hill.—Did you ever see the like on it? Why, Ephraim, on a piece of ground as big as a cow-yard we might raise five hundred bushels of corn, and a thousand bushels of potatoes.

I won't stop to write any more for fear he'll sell it before you get there. You needn't scan with him much about the price on't if you can only get some. Write as soon as you get back and let me know, if you get some, I shall pull up stakes here and come right home. Your lovin cousin, JACK DOWNING.

FEMALE BEAUTY.

From an essay in Mrs. Hale's Ladies Magazine, on Beauty.

'To sum up the whole the charms that are really indispensably to being beloved, may be possessed by every one, who is not personally or mentally, or morally deformed, let us enumerate them.

Firstly—an eye, whether black, blue or grey that has the spirit of kindness in its expression.

Secondly—A mouth that is able to say a good deal, and all sincerely. Its teeth kept as clean as possible must be an argument of cleanliness in general; it must also be very good natured to servants, and friends that come in unexpectedly to dinner.

Thirdly—a figure which shall preserve itself not by neglecting any of its duties, but by good taste, exercise, and the dislike of gross living—A woman may be fond of almost any pleasure under the sun, except those of tattling and the table, and ostentation.

Fourthly—the art of being happy at home and making that home the abode of peace Where can peace dwell if there if no piety? These qualities will sway the souls of men, when shallower perfections enumerated in this article would cease to charm. A good heart is after all the best beautifier.

India Rubber.—This valuable product, first made known by La Condamine, in 1736, is the juice of several species of trees growing in S. America. It flows from the trees as a milky fluid, which soon hardens upon exposure to the air. Various attempts have been made to transport it to Europe in its fluid state without success. Its application to the arts is various but until recently, no advantage has been taken of one of its most remarkable properties, its elasticity. Two ingenious chemists of Paris, Messrs. Ratier and Guibal, by an entirely new solvent and a very delicate process, have succeeded in spinning it into threads of various sizes.—This is subsequently woven into suspenders, garters, surgical bandages for ruptures, fractured or dislocated limbs, &c.

'Our sufferings IS intolerable.'—The following is copied verbatim et literatim, from a letter recently received at the office of the National Ægis, Worcester, Mass. with the exception of blanks for names and town:

——dec. 14 1830 onondago N. Y.

The National Egis Sir, hear is No Such man ast—— ——in this Town and your paper heasent Ben taken out &c. I heve Sent one Letter to you Before ane your paper L ze hear,

HONEY LOCUST BEER

RECIPE.—Take one bushel of honey locust seeds and pods, when about ripe, break them, put them into a barrel, and fill it with boiling water; let it stand until milk warm, then add a pint of good yeast. Put in the bung lightly until fermentation is nearly over, then rack off, as with cider, when clear, bottle it and wire the corks. When kept a few months it is equal to sparkling champaigne. It can be used in two days after it is made. [West. Tiller.

CHINESE COW.—It is mentioned in an English publication, that a Chinese cow, which had been imported into England, gives milk so very rich, that one pint of it gives as much butter (4 ounces) as seven pints of a Sussex cow's milk both churned immediately from the cow, without being set for cream. The Chinese cow is small, the beef is superior in fatness, and in butter the superiority is as 1400 lbs to 200 lbs from a very good country cow. The New England Farmer recommends the importation of this valuable breed into America.

TO THE AFFLICTED.

THIS is to certify that I was afflicted with hæmaturia, or in other words, that I passed a great quantity of blood with my urine, by which I was weakened so as to be confined to my bed; for the removal of which disease I employed physicians both at Easton and Baltimore without receiving any benefit from their prescriptions or advice. Despairing of a cure of the disease I applied to the Indian Physician, E. Lockwood, at Easton, and in nine days my complaint was entirely removed. As witness my hand and seal this third day of January, 1831.

THOS. P. TOWNSEND, Seal.

☞As to a knowledge of the cure of Mr. Townsend's disease by the Indian Physician, I cheerfully put my hand and seal, this 3d day of January, 1831.

$20 REWARD,

(INCLUDING THAT WHICH I HAVE OFFERED IN HANDBILLS)

WILL be given for the apprehension of MILES CARVER but sometimes calls himself GOODNHAND, who broke out of the jail of Lancaster county, on the morning of the 12th inst. confined on a charge of ROBBERY. On the previous night he broke his hobbles, armed himself with two hickory cudgels, a butcher's knife and an iron poker; laid injunctions of secrecy on the other prisoners under pain of death—swore that he had broke four jails, and he would break this one also, that night, or die in the attempt. Said he was a highway robber, and had $1000 buried, not 15 miles from Lancaster. He attempted putting his threats into execution, by breaking thro' the front wall of the prison, and would have succeeded had it not been for one heavy stone. After failing here, he frothed and foamed; said he would be chained to the floor if he did not get out—swore that he would kill the Jailor and Sheriff, or any man that opposed him, and commenced pounding and breaking stones, in order to alarm the keepers of the prison, that they might come up. The next morning he succeeded in making his escape, by scaling the wall of the back yard, while the keeper was unlocking the doors of the other prisoners.

Said robber is about 30 years of age, 5 feet 9 or 10 inches high, stout made, ruddy complexion, slightly pock-marked, short flat nose, with a scar on the right nostril extending to the corner of the eye, leaving a nick on the point of the nose—had on a blue coat gray cassinett pantaloons, and half worn hat. The above reward will be given for the securing of the said robber in any jail in the United States.
