to Lloyd's office with me once, also Geo Murrell and Amos Jackson went there but Murrell and Jackson were not my comrades. Geo. W. Davis was also another comrade of mine and I remember he went there with me once but I do not know when that was. I think that I went to Lloyd's office by myself when I first went there. The first time I went there I made my application. I was sworn to my application. When I first went to Lloyd's his office was on Lexington St., near Charles St. I think it was in August or September 1890 that I first went there. I believe Mr Lloyd himself wrote out my application and I took the paper to a Magistrate around on St. Paul St. who swore me to it. I was sworn to that paper on a bible. I do not know the name of the magistrate nor do I remember the number of his office. I think it was down stairs on the first floor. I took Shields with me at the time and I also think Evans went along. No sir, no one from Lloyd's office went with me. I cannot now describe the magistrate we met there. I cannot say whether he was old or young and I cannot say whether I have seen him since or not. I remember there was a big man named Rice at Lloyd's office. I do not know whether he had anything to do with my case or not. I never saw him anywhere except at Lloyd's. I know Mr Lloyd very well and I know he has two clerks - one a young boy who wears glasses and a young woman, but I do not know their names. I also remember a man that used to be there named McDonald. I also remember a clerk at Lloyd's named Warner.

Q Did Mac Donald or Warner ever swear you or any of your witnesses?

A No sir, neither did the young boy or lady ever
