His arms and legs were so stiff that I could not bend them. The fit lasted about fifteen minutes. We poulticed his wrists with wet mustard, it seemed to help him. The next fit I saw him have was when he came over to my house to live about two or three years after I saw him have the first fit.

Then about a month after he had been at my house one Sunday afternoon. He had another fit was ~~very~~ stiff but I never saw him stagger, froth or foam at the mouth, or bleed. And after he came to he is stupid. He lived with me for over three years and during that time I suppose he had fits on an average of once every two months, or every time after he had done a hard days work. I looked for him to have a fit.

And the year before last, at harvest time he came up and while harvesting for Ned Daytons he was taken with Cramps, but he had a fit before being taken with the Cramps.

Then I did not see him have
