NCARE NOW OWNS THE IDOL

RNOT'S FAMILY THOUGHT IT BROUGHT ILL LUCK.

REDICTION OF THE RAJAH

aid the Possessor of It Would Die a Violent Death — Seven Years Later Carnot Was Assassinated. President Poincare Not Superstitious Over the Statue—French Historian Recalls the Medical Use of the Sea Turtle.

Paris, March 29.—When Sadi Carnot was minister of finance an eminent archeologist, who had just returned from an expedition to Nepaul, presented him with a curiously and delicately wrough stone idol. The rajah who gave it to the archieologist averred that it assured supreme power to one of the members of the possessor's family, but that he would also die a violent death. The Hindoo prince preferred to forego power under such conditions, and so it came into the possession of the man of science, who gave it to M. Carnot. The minister of finance was not superstitious and accepted the gift with pleasure.

The evening of Carnot's unexpected election to the presidency of the republic the archeologist received a laconic note from Madame Carnot saying: "It is the statue." Seven years later President Carnot was assassinated at Lyons.

When Madame Carnot died her children found in her will an urgent request to them not to keep the idol. Her sons, in compliance with their mother's last wish, got rid of the image which ultimately came into the hands of an intimate friend of M. Poincare's, who presented it to that statesman on August 20, 1911, his birthday. A little more than a year afterward Poincare was elected by the Congress of Versailles to the presidency of France. It is a curious coincidence, but President Poincare, like Carnot, has a mind unsusceptible to the suggestions of superstition.

Sea Turtle in Medicine.

A French historian, in connection with the alleged cure for tuberculosis now being advanced by Dr. F. F. Friedmann in the United States, calls attention to the little known fact that the medicinal use of the sea-turtle is by no means of recent date.

On July 8, 1483, King Louis XI., of France, sent George the Greek, master mariner, to the Cape Verde Islands to seek "various things touching nearly to the well-being and health of our person." The Cape Verde Islanders had the reputation of possessing a cure for leprosy, a report of which had been brought back to France by a traveler from the coast of Guinea at about the time King Louis was in declining health. According to the recital of this traveler, the big sea-turtles were caught by the islanders when they came out on the beach at low tide to feed. They were at once killed, and their blood caught in large tubs. Persons afflicted with leprosy bathed in the blood, and afterward ate of the turtle's flesh. This treatment was kept up for two years, at the end of which time the patients were usually completely cured of the dreadful disease.

Louis XI. a Leper.

This record would tend to show that Louis XI. was a leper. That such was the case had been rumored by chroniclers, but the reason of the expedition to the Cape Verde Islands, now published for the first time, throws much light on the psychology of Louis XI., his ill-humor and his sedulous avoidance of mankind during the last days of his life. The wretched man evidently believed himself smitten with leprosy. He was, however, never fated to test the efficacy of the sea-turtle remedy, for he died August 30, 1483, before the return of the expedition.

A group of blind masseurs encouraged by their success at some of the principal French watering places, have just opened an establishment in the medical quarter of Paris. The minister of the interior has granted them a small subvention to help place their institution on a sound basis, and they will be actively supported by the Valentine Hauy Association for the Care of the Blind.

Owing to their highly developed sense of touch, the blind masseurs succeed in an altogether exceptional manner; they are also necessarily the most discreet members of the profession. In Japan from time immemorial massage was always a monopoly of the blind, indeed, in Japanese the same word does duty for a blind man and a masseur. As a new opening for active usefulness, and as a means of independent living for the blind, the new enterprise is attracting a great deal of interest in Paris and many offers of support from specialists.

Thirty-seven Years a Student.

The oldest university student in Switzerland, Gottlieb Laederach, died in Bern this week at the age of 57, having studied at the University of Bern for 37 years without having taken his medical degree.

Laederach entered the university when he was 20 years old. He studied assiduously, but, owing to a singular nervous temperament, he could never pass an examination. Under the written and oral tests he became so embarrassed that he always failed.

Laederach, however, had an independent income and tenacity. He determined to pass the examinations if it took a lifetime. Many of his student friends became distinguished doctors. Several became professors of medicine at Bern, and Laederach attended their lectures, although he knew as much as they did.

Years went by, with the student still striving for his degree. Last week he went into the university examination room for the hundredth time. He was engaged in writing a series of answers to the questions of the examiners when he fell forward on his desk, dead from heart failure.

French Polar Expedition.

The end of June will see the departure from Havre of a French Polar expedition under Jules de Payer. The ends sought, however, are purely scientific and this expedition will not be a sporting "rush for the North Pole." The principal purpose is thoroughly to investigate the great abyss which borders the North European submarine continent, and to this everything else is to be subordinated.

The expedition, which comprises expert geologists, hydrographers, oceanographers, biologists and naturalists, will take up its winter quarters in the Franz Josef archipelago, and the members will devote the long winter to making astronomical and meteorological observations.

When summer comes the expedition will be divided into two parts; the first, under M. de Payer, assisted by two sea captains, a military aviator and a navy doctor, will push boldly northward; the second, under a navy lieutenant, will survey and make soundings among the canals, fjords and islands of the archipelago as yet unexplored.

Two aeroplanes are included in the expedition, in order to determine if, and under what conditions, they can be utilized in the Polar regions.

NEW PARCEL POST RULING

Patrons Will Not Pay for Negligence of Postmasters.

Special Dispatch to The American.

Washington, March 29.—Patrons of the parcel post system are not to be made to pay for the negligence of postmasters in failing to see that proper stamps were used on the parcels or that the proper amount of postage was affixed.

Postmaster General Burleson today annulled the order providing for the collection of a double rate of postage when ordinary stamps, instead of the distinctive parcel post stamps, were used. Hereafter the postmasters must return to senders incorrectly stamped parcels before the stamps are cancelled, with notice to use correct stamps. When the name of the sender is unknown, the parcel will be shipped to its destination and the proper postage collected. In all instances the penalty of double postage is abolished.

SUBMARINE AS A TARGET

First of Its Type, A-1, Has Been Condemned by the Navy.

Washington, March 29.—The first submarine torpedo boat built for the Navy, and perhaps the first successful craft of that kind in the world; A-1, formerly the Plunger, has been condemned and will be used as a target for experimental torpedo and gun work at Newport. The A-1 was built at the Crescent Shipyards, Elizabethport, N. J., in 1900-3, and with one exception all succeeding submarines have been built upon her general lines.

Another little naval vessel, the Chickasaw, which was bought by the Navy Department in 1898, and has rendered much good service, has been condemned and will be sold to the highest bidder. She is now at Newport.

COMMENDED FOR RESCUES

Quartermaster and Seaman Saved Shipmates From Drowning.

Washington, March 29.—Letters of commendation for gallant rescues from drowning were addressed today by Secretary Daniels, of the Navy Department, to Samuel O. Bellah, of Georgia, chief quartermaster of the United States steamship Ontario, and George A. Cruze, of Knoxville, Tenn., ordinary seaman, of the United States steamship Vermont. Bellah rescued R. Blum, chief boatswain's mate on the United States steamship Osceola, at the Norfolk Navy Yard, March 10. Cruze rescued John H. Laird, ordinary seaman, who fell overboard from the Vermont at Vera Cruz, March 10.

Cardinal Gotti at Eighty.

Rome, March 29.—The venerable Cardinal Gotti, prefect of the propaganda, entered upon his eightieth year today. The position which Cardinal Gotti has held for more than 10 years is the most important in the gift of the Pope and his influence at the Vatican is second to none. Were it not for his advanced age the Cardinal undoubtedly would be considered as a candidate for the throne of St. Peter in the event of the passing of Pope Pius X. As it is, he probably will exert a potent influence in the selection of the next Pontiff.

Cardinal Gotti's ability as a diplomat is well-known, while his knowledge of canon law is asserted by many to be superior to that of any other member of the Sacred College.

GATHERING FOR JUBILEE IN ROME

16TH CENTENNIAL OF PEACE OF CONSTANTINE.

RECOGNIZED CHRISTIANITY

Thousands of Pilgrims From All Parts of the World Are Assembling in the Eternal City to Witness the Series of Celebrations Arranged by the Vatican to Commemorate the Proclamation of the Edict of Milan.

Special Dispatch to The American.

Rome, March 29.—Thousands of pilgrims from all parts of the globe are assembled in this city to witness the opening of the series of celebrations which the Vatican has arranged to commemorate the sixteenth centennial of the proclamation of the edict of Milan, known as the Peace of Constantine, which marked the Christianization of the Roman government.

On the surface, this celebration, which will extend over the whole year, is supposed merely to be a fitting remembrance of the adoption by the Emperor Constantine, following his victory over the pagan general, Maxentius, just outside of Rome, of Christianity as the official religion of the state. No secret, however, is made of the fact that back of the celebration are two other motives. In the first place this commemoration is intended as a protest of the Vatican against the celebration by Italy two years ago of the fiftieth anniversary of its unification, a celebration which was highly offensive to the Vatican, because it commemorated an event by which the Vatican was deprived of its temporal power.

Slap at Government.

To celebrate the anniversary of the unification of Italy the government had arranged exhibitions on a magnificent scale at Rome and at Turin, but owing to the outbreak of the war with Turkey, the prevalence of a cholera epidemic and other unfortunate conditions the celebration proved a failure and attracted but few visitors to Italy.

One of the motives in arranging the Constantine Year celebration by the Vatican was to prove to the world how much greater is the temporal power of the Vatican than that of the Italian government. Judging from the number of pilgrims already assembled here and the many thousands who are either on their way to Rome or have made their plans to visit the city at some time during the celebration year, the Vatican bids fair to make a good showing. Although the commemorative celebrations planned will all be held in this city, some of the principal anniversaries will be observed by Roman Catholic churches throughout the world.

The illness of the Pope will probably prevent him from taking part in the services and ceremonies scheduled to take place within the precincts of the Vatican, but there will be enough pomp and spectacular display of a magnificent order to satisfy even the most exacting sightseeing visitors. Should the condition of the pontiff improve he may, by his presence, lend greater importance to the religious ceremonies in the Vatican to be held in April.

Will Begin Tomorrow.

The series of commemorative celebrations will begin tomorrow with a solemn Eucharistic procession, passing from the Catacombs of St. Domitilla, to those of St. Calixtus and then to the church and catacombs of St. Sebastian where a Te Deum will be sung and the Blessed Sacrament administered to the pilgrims.

From April 6 to 13, inclusive, a solemn Octave will be celebrated at the Church of St. John Lateran with exposition of the Acheropita. During the Octave the mornings will be set apart for the reception of pilgrims of Catholic young men's associations, arch confraternities, congregations and religious orders; with a sermon every afternoon by a bishop and benediction by a cardinal, culminating in a Pontifical high mass on April 13, celebrated by a cardinal in the presence of the pontifical court, the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See and the high dignitaries of the Church of Rome.

To Display Relics.

On April 20 there will be a solemn commemoration at St. Peter's on the same scale of magnificence as the Feast of the Prince of the Apostles, with the exposition of the relics of the Passion of the Saviour, which are kept at St. Peters.

On April 27 there will be a celebration and pontifical mass at the Patriarchal Basilica of St. Paul on the Ostian Way. May 2, 3 and 4 there will be pontifical masses in the Church of St. Groce in Gerusalemme, and on the night of May 4, an immense electric cross will be inaugurated on Monte Cavo, 18 miles from Rome. In May, June, August and December other commemorative celebrations of an impressive character will be held at the Papal Chapel at St. Peter's, the Church of St. Agnes, the Church of St. Laurence, the parish church of St. Peter and Marcellinus, the Cathedral of Albana and the Church of St. Mary Major, where for three days the Holy Image of the Blessed Virgin, known as the Borghenia, will be exposed to the view of the visiting pilgrims.

There will also be special services and celebrations at that same church on each of the three days, December 6, 7 and 8, which will close the series of the celebrations.

SUFFRAGISTS PERSISTENT

To Call On Wilson Despite the Announcement of His Attitude.

Special Dispatch to The American.

Washington, March 29.—Nine women voters, representing the nine suffrage states, will appeal to President Wilson Monday morning for suffrage despite his saying that he wished Congress to originate the movement for an amendment to the Constitution.

Mrs. Annie H. Pitzer, of Colorado, sister-in-law of Speaker Champ Clark, will be among the party while Mrs. Charles Morton, of Washington; Mrs. Fred Dubois, of Idaho; Mrs. John E. Raker, of California, and Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, of Wyoming, will also appeal to the President.

BIG GUNS DESTROY EGGS

Daniels Has an Unusual Complaint to Settle.

Washington, March 29.—Whether the concussion from the fire of the great naval guns kills chickens and geese in the eggs is a question of fact Secretary Daniels, of the Navy Department, has been called upon to answer. He received a letter today from a woman on the Virginia coast, near Cape Henry, charging that the target practice of the battleship fleet in Chesapeake Bay and even in the open ocean outside, was destructive to all poultry life in egg form. Even as she wrote, she declared, the heavy guns were booming and she estimated that she had lost $76 in eggs.

The inspector of ordnance at Indian Head already has reported that the heavy gun fire daily at the proving ground, apparently did not in the slightest degree affect the fowls which were hatched and raised in great numbers as close as 400 yards from the muzzle of the guns.

JOB HUNTERS UNDAUNTED

Treasury Department Is Swamped With Applications.

Washington, March 29.—Secretary McAdoo's game of hide and seek with jobhunters has not deterred the throng. Undaunted by the Secretary's escape to parts unknown, the office-seekers today swamped the Treasury Department with applications by mail. Hundreds of pleas, each accompanied by hundreds of indorsements, were dumped on weary officials. So great was the crush of mail that six extra clerks were employed in the appointment division solely to open applications and refer them to the proper officials. Acting Secretary Williams was virtually buried under an avalanche of eloquent appeals. Some of the applications and indorsements were bound in leather, making a book of 500 pages.

Have You Nasal Catarrh?

S. B. HARTMAN, M.D.
Columbus, Ohio.

Can you breathe through your nose? I mean, can you breathe freely through each nostril? If not, do you know what the reason is? It is nasal catarrh.

It may not be far advanced. You may not have thought of catarrh or given the matter very much heed in any way. But if you find that you cannot breathe freely through each nostril, be sure there is something wrong. Nature intended you to breathe through the nostrils. Both nostrils.

Try first one, then the other. Every morning when you get up practice deep breathing through the nostrils. Put your finger on one nostril and hold it tight while you breathe through the other, backwards and forwards, do this.

At the same time you should take Peruna. The dose on the bottle is one teaspoonful. You had better make it three teaspoonfuls. The reason why I insist this is because I want you to take a teaspoonful of the Peruna and as you swallow it down breathe the fumes of it out through the nose. Then the next teaspoonful do the same thing, and so on until the three teaspoonfuls are taken. This, however, is after you have thoroughly cleansed your nose by deep breathing.

While you are practicing the deep breathing you may snuff up the nose a little salt water. A teaspoonful to the quart of warm water.

But after you have thoroughly cleansed your nose then taken the Peruna as above directed. Do not put it off. Do it now. Do it before your nose gets bad. Only one nostril is partially stopped up. It will not remain so long. It will open up entirely. The other will be opened, too. Begin now. No. 55.

NOSE AND HEAD STOPPED UP FROM COLD OR CATARRH, OPEN AT ONCE

My Cleansing, Healing Balm Instantly Clears Nose, Head and Throat—Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges. Dull Headache Goes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.
