The causes of that hostility are now developed. The curtain is raised, by which they were concealed. They stand revealed to public view. A comparison of dates will leave scarcely a shadow of doubt that the true ground of the hostility of the President's confidential friends to the Bank, was its want of pliancy to their party schemes.

The attempt to convert the Bank into a party machine—we say the Bank, because although the attempted reform began only with one branch, it was avowedly contemplated as to other branches, and it is fairly presumable was to all of them—as made within the first quarter of a year after the wheels (and the screws) of the Government had got fairly to work. The attempt was finally defeated in the October following. The denunciation of the Bank, which so much astonished every body, in the message of the President, (which, it is not concealed, was put together by different hands, and was not his alone,) was of only two months later date than the last letter from his secretary of the Treasury to the President of the Bank. The effect followed closely upon the cause—it was the clap of thunder after the lightning's flash. Let us recur to the terms of that denunciation;

"Both the constitutionality and the expediency of the law creating this Bank are well questioned by a large portion of our fellow-citizens; and it must be admitted by all that it has failed in the great end of establishing a uniform and sound currency.

"Under these circumstances if such an institution is deemed essential to the fiscal operations of the Government, I submit to the wisdom of the Legislature whether a National one, founded upon the credit of the Government and its revenues, might not be devised which would avoid all constitutional difficulties, and at the same time secure all the advanteges to the Government and country, that were expected to result from the present Bank."—President's Message, Dec. 8, 1832.

Put this and that together. After the history which we have just conned over is it not clear the "large portion of our fellow citizens," referred to in the Message, who question the expediency of "this" Bank, are the portion who desire to have a political Bank, and who in New Hampshire wanted to thrust Mr. Mason aside—to break him because they could not bend him? Who does not perceive that the writer of the Message had in his mind's eye the then recent refusal of the Bank of the United states to allow to the party—not "the Government," for the Government has always acknowledged freely the advantages which it has derived from it—but to the party "all the advantage" expected from it.

Have we not solved the enigma?

POLITICS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

We doubt whether there ever has been a time when it was more difficult to understand the politics of this state than the present. The Jackson party which in 1828 polled upwards of 100,000 votes, is split in twain; one portion supporting Jackson and Van Buren and the other clinging to Jackson and Wilkins. It is probable that the two parties united would not raise more than two-thirds of the number of votes given in 1828. Besides, cases of daily falling off are taking place and by an attachment to principles the whole party would be in danger of dissolution. A late Pennsylvania Inquirer a Jackson paper states that they have heard of a paper in circulation in Philadelphia, (to be made publick on the 4th of July next,) which already contains the names of 1400 persons, who have pledged themselves to withdraw from the support of Gen. Jackson. If this is correct not more than two weeks after the fact is known will pass away before 14,000 will have swerved in their allegiance.

The Antimasonic ticket in 1828, had about 50,000 votes. But this number included all those who were disaffected to the Jackson party. Since then they have had no opportunity to become acquainted with their strength, and the number of votes they will be able to poll is matter of mere conjecture.

Then come the National Republicans embracing those who are the most strenuous advocates of the protective system—friends of internal Improvement, the judiciary and the United States Bank.—This party under its present name is of a later origin than either of the others, though the principles it acknowledges are the same that have been supported by the friends of the constitution since the organization of the government. This party is also ignorant of its strength, no trial of it having been made. The principal reliance of its adherents is on the intelligence and patriotism of the people who are deeply interested in the success of the measures it adopts. The ranks of the national republicans are dialy filling up, and judging from the information in our possession, we should not be surprised if the united and strenuous exertions of the party should give the electoral vote to Clay and Sergeant.

Disgusting Scene—On Monday a white woman bearing the impress upon her countenance of having once been handsome was conducted to the Police by the 1st Ward Inspector at the instance of an ill looking negro black as coal, who claimed her as his wife and charged her with having eloped from his residence in Boston. The wretched female told the magistrate that the claimant with some others had made her drink to intoxication in Boston, and whilst she was in that state the mariage ceremony was performed; The magistrate not having any power to act in the matter, ordered both to leave the office.—*N. Valuable Real Estate FOR SALE.

The subscribers offer at Private sale that valuable estate.

OAKWOOD;

The property of the late Dr. W. T. Ringgold, situated on Corsica Creek a branch of Chester River, about 45 miles from Baltimore, and six miles from Centreville. It contains a tract of 1100 acres of which 600 acres is heavy primitive timber, a large proportion suitable for ship builders, say white oak, cedar, and locust—and lying on navigable water.

The arable land is naturally an excellent soil; and might be made, by proper management and at a small expense, one of the most productive estates in Queen Ann's County, as it abounds with marle and other native manures, of the finest quality, and easy access. Fish and wild fowl are abundant in their seasons—and the situation is one of the most salubrious on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

The improvements consist of a two

As the Wood Land is much more than is necessary for the farm, a portion of it would be disposed of in LOTS to suit purchasers, if application is made in time—The property can be examined at any time upon application to Mr. Asbury Carter, residing on the premises, any communication addressed to either of the undersigned, in Chestertown, will bo promptly attended to.
