THE MARRIAGE SCENE.

BY MONTGOMERY.

"YOUNG, chaste, and lovely—pleas'd, yet half afraid
Before yon altar droops a plighted maid,
Clad in her bridal robes of taintless white,
Dumb with the scene, and trepid with delight;
Around her hymeneal guardians stand,
Each with a tender look and feeling bland;
And oft she turns her beauty-beaming eye,
Dimm'd with a tear of happiness gone by!
Then coyly views, in youth's commanding pride,
Her own ador'd one panting by her side;
Like lilies bending from the noon-tide blaze
Her bashful eyelids droop beneath his gaze;
While love and homage blend their blissful power,
And shed a halo round his marriage hour!
What though his chance-abounding life ordain
A path of anguish and precarious pain;
By wane or woe, where'er compelled to rove,
A cot's a palace by the light of love!
There beats one heart, which, until death will be
A gushing, glowing fount of sympathy;
One frownless eye to kindle with his own,
One changeless friend, when other friends are flown!
O! sanction Thou, the love united pair,
Fountain of love! for Thou art present there."

Barren Creek Springs.

THE SUBSCRIBER respectfully informs his friends and the public generally, that this salutary watering place is now open for the reception of visitors. An anxious solicitude to promote the comfort of those who may leave their avocations, or the abodes of lingering disease, and resort to this purest of Chalybeates, has induced him to make such arrangements as will promote the invigoration of the indisposed; or the happiness of those who are in search of pleasure. When we reflect on the trifling investment necessary for a visit to this place, and the beneficial effects likely to be produced; we are induced to believe that such as are solicitous to avoid the autumnal diseases of our climate, will repair to the springs for the double purpose of promoting health, & preventing disease. Such as feel inclined to visit this place, may also feel assured that the charges shall be moderately suited to the times.
