POETRY.

WHO LOVES ME BEST?

BY MARY ANN BROWNE.

Who loves me best?—my mother sweet,
Whose every look with love is replete;
Who held me, an infant, on her knee—
And yet I have heard my mother say,
That she sometime must pass away;
Who then shall shield me from earthly ill,—
Some one must love me better still!

Who loves me best?—my father dear,
Who loveth to have me ever near;
He whom I fly each eve to meet,
When past away is the noon-tide heat;
Who from the bank where the sun-beam lies,
Brings me the wild-wood strawberries,
Oh! he is dear as my mother to me,—
But he will perish as well as she.

Who loves me best?—the gentle dove,
That I have tamed with my childish love,
That every one save myself doth fear,
Whose soft coo soundeth when I come near;
Yet perhaps it loves me because I bring,
To its cage the drops of the clearest spring;
And band green branches around the door:—
Something, surely, must love me more!

Who loves me best?—my sister fair,
With her laughing eyes and clustering hair,
Who flowers around my head doth twine,
Who presseth her rosy lips to mine,
Who singeth songs in her artless glee,—
Can any love me better than she?
Yet when I asked, that sister confest,
Of all she did not love me the best!

Who loves me the best?—my brother young,
With his healthy cheek and his lisping tongue,
Who delighteth to lead me in merry play,
Far down the green wood's bushy way,
Who showeth me where the hazel-nuts grow,
And where the fairest field flowers blow:
But perhaps he loves me more than the rest:
How shall I find who loves me best?

My mother loves me—but she may die:
My white dove loves me—but that may fly:
My father loves me—he may be changed:
I have heard of brothers and sisters estranged,
If they should forsake me, what should I do?
Where should I bear my sad heart to?
Some one surely would be my stay—
Some one must love me better than they.

"Yes, fair child, there is one above,
Who loves thee with an unchangeable love:
He who formed those frail dear things,
To which thy young heart fondly clings,—
Even though all should forsake thee, still
He would protect thee through every ill:
Oh, is not such love worth all the rest?
Child! it is God who loves the best!"

USE OF THE TOMATO.

In quickening the action of the abdominal viscera.—Like most persons of studious or sedentary habits, I often am more or less incommoded, and my health impaired, by inaction of the stomach and bowels, so as to be under the necessity of resorting to medicine, principally cathartics. In order to enable our readers perfectly to appreciate what I am about to say of a remedy, this state of the bowels is always in some degree accompanied with a sense of straitness of the chest, and besides a general uneasiness, and lassitude, with the head ache, or some degree of pain in the region of the liver. I seems to me a recurrence of those symptoms that accompany attacks of what is called by my physicians, a liver complaint, to which I have been a good deal subject. The appetite instead of being keen becomes imperfect, with a peculiar taste of the mouth, as if something was wanting in the functions of digestion, to constitute health, for which cathartics are only a temporary relief, not a remedy.

The common Tomato, used in making gravy, at once removes this taste of the mouth, in a little time quickens the action of the liver, and removes all the above noticed symptoms and feelings; I regard it as an invaluable article of diet, or, if you please, as of medicine, or of medical dietetics. With me it has always been my object of solicitude, to find out such diet, as should supercede the necessity of medicine. Except in pickle, which I cannot use, I eat the Tomato, in every imaginable mode of dressing, and find it perfectly adapted to my wants. In the hope of being of some use to others, these facts are stated. The Tomato is of great use to me. It is raised with less trouble than any other vegetable that I have any knowledge of. It was planted six years ago, drops its own seed into the ground, and has produced bushels every year since, with no other trouble than once digging the same ground, in spring, and one or two hoeings, on a spot of perhaps six feet square. It makes a good pickle, and is raised with one hundredth part the labor and trouble of an equal quantity of cucumbers. But, one other object remains to be stated.

I incline to the opinion, though without having yet fully tried it, that the Tomato may be made into a rich sauce, for meat; and be kept thro' the year, or from season to season of the fruit. The gravy, I know, even in the hottest weather of summer, will keep perfectly unchanged for several days, in a common open dish in a pantry; and this I know, as my cook does not like the article, I have contrived to keep it over when she neglects my directions.

If properly prepared, and bottled and corked, it would certainly keep good in an ice house, or perhaps in a common cellar, or under water, or a low and uniform temperature. At any rate, if found to be as useful to others as it is to me, it if will be quite desirable to find out how it may be best preserved for use. As a pickle kept in brine or vinegar, I could not use it, and I am inclined to think that its good qualilities would be much diminished, for any one, by this mode of preservation. It seems to me, that of all the articles of diet or medicine that have come to my knowledge, the Tomato acts most directly upon the liver, and thus on bile. Publish this if you please, and let others try it, and make their own observations. I know that several persons of my acquaintance have derived a like benefit from the use of it.

Constitutionally predisposed to a torpor of the liver, and the abdominal viscera, I have through life, been subject to the necessity of using cathartics, until having discovered the good effects of the Tomato. In all cases, except in such above described, my flow of animal spirits have always been uniform, rather abundant than otherwise, sustaining severe mental effort, even to 12 and 19 hours each 24, for weeks in succession, always without other stimuli than ordinary food and drink. Wine generally exhilarates, except as it increases my [illegible] and ardent spirits always depresses the tone of my mind. How far they may be regarded as peculiarities, I know not, but think proper to state them, for the sake of a clear understanding, and a sincere desire to be useful to others. I have never known the effect, even in the slightest degree, of any sort of intoxicating drinks. Health exhilarates, and ailments depress my spirits.

When afflicted with inaction of the bowels, head ache, a bad taste of the mouth, straitness of the chest, and a dull painful heaviness of the region of the liver, the whole of these symptoms are removed by Tomato sauce; and the mind in the course of some few hours is put into a perfect tone, like a new violin. These facts certainly merit a narration, and I can but hope they may be of use to persons. The true plan of life for men of mind, and especially for men of study, and much mental effort is so to live, as to have our food supply all that is necessary of medicine. A wise man will soon learn to relish what agrees with his temperament, and reject all else, in food and drink. To which I will only add, that much employment of the mind, particularly in men of slow habits of the body, slow action of the bowels, calls for a larger proportion than they generally use, in temperate men, of liquid food or drink.—N. Y. Farmer.

The Petersburg Constellation has the following paragraph:

Assassination of Robert Potter, Esq.—A report reached town last evening, that this gentleman, formerly a member of Congress from the Warren District, and lately a candidate to represent the county of Granville, in the House of Commons of N. Carlina, was shot through the body and mortally wounded, a day or, two ago, by Spencer O'Brien, Esq., one of the opposing candidates—Mr. Potter was under a heavy recognizance.

In publishing the above paragraph, the Richmond Compiler remarks:

Mr. Potter had lately been released from jail, where he suffered several years imprisonment for an extraordinary outrage committed on a clergyman and a youth, in a fit of uncontrolable jealously. He was at the time of its commission a member of Congress, and it is stated, emerged from jail with popularity not only undiminished, but increased, and was likely to be returned to Congress again. He was a man of good talents, and raised in the Navy; but of high and burning passions, accompaneid however, by many generous qualities.

Every one knows that we had warm weather; that some men have died from drinking cold water, and some horses been killed by excessive exertion; but no one in this quarter of the world can imagine the heat of the weather in some sections of New Jersey. Major Noah, whose known gravity precludes all idea of a joke, seriously tells us that two locomotives on the Camden and Amboy Rail Road, gave out from mere exhaustion on account of the heat.
