NOTICE OF AN EARTHQUAKE AT SAENA, IN PERU.—By John Reid, Esq.

[Communicated by the Author.]

Saena, 11th November, 1833.

Sir—The place from which I write is situated forty miles N. N. W. of the port of Arica, on the coast of Peru, and twenty-five miles inland from the point of the bay of the same name, laid down in our maps as the Morra de Sama. The surrounding country is part of that hopeless waste which reaches along the coast from Tumbey to the confine of Chili, on which nature, in denying it rain, has set the impress of eternal sterrility.

The Cordillera of the Andes, which runs nearly the whole extent of this side of South America, parallel with the coast, is distant only about twenty miles, and presents the sublime summits of Tacora, and three other nameless mountains, covered, for several thousand feet, with perpetual snow, glittering under the pure sunshine of a tropical sky. The climate, from our proximity to the Cordillera on the one hand, and the Pacific ocean on the other is one of the finest in the world; seven years of almost constant observation have given me a medium of 63 degrees, as the general average temperature of day and night. Rain, in the proper sense of the word, is unknown in winter. We have sometimes a drizzling mist during the night, but even this is rare, and the wind, except in the slight southerly trade breeze, which sets in about mid-day, and calms at sunset, is utterly unknown. A small stream, dignified by the name of River, descends from the Cordillera, and by its careful distribution, supports the luxuriant vegetation, which environs the town, but these advantages are more than counterbalanced by our exposure to earthquakes.

On the night of the 8th of October, 1831, at a quarter past 9 o'clock, the first great "terremoto," for a period of nearly a century, took place here. Its approach was announced by a hollow rumbling subterraneous noise, not unlike, but much louder, than distant thunder.—This lasted for about ten seconds, and was followed by a violent vertical movement of the earth, which continued for nearly seventy seconds more. Many of the houses were thrown down, the walls of others shattered in every direction, and in some cases pieces of building were detached from the middle of walls, leaving the rest of the edifice uninjured. This earthquake ruined the unfortunate town of Arica, was felt at the very extremity of the republic to the south, and as far north as Camana, a line covering seven degrees of latitude along the coast. It was also felt at sea, at a distance of 100 miles from Arica, and at Chuquisaca, 400 miles inland, shaking to its centre, not only the immense breadth of the main Cordillera, but the lateral chain of Portosi, on the eastern extremity of which Chuquisaca is situated.—The great shock was followed by two others at 11, P. M. and 5 of the following morning, and the earth continued sensibly trembling for at least a fortnight afterwards. Up to the 7th February, 1832, I counted ninety-seven distinct shocks & from that day the greater part of the earthquakes we have had have taken place without the noise which used formerly to precede them.

On the morning of the 18th September last, precisely at 6 o'clock, another dreadful convulsion of the earth occurred here, which entirely destroyed at least 1000 of the 1200 houses of this unfortunate city, besides completing the utter ruin of Arica and the other small towns of the province. This earthquake commenced in its full force without any preceding noise.—It lasted forty-three seconds, and the movement of the earth was horizontal, with two or three undulatory oscillations, the most alarming and dangerous of all. Those who, like myself, may have frequently experienced similar things, will easily agree with me, that it is no time for exactness in calculation, nor could I speak with precision to the duration of this convulsion, in which my personal safety was in many ways threatened; but for the fact of having had my watch at the moment of its occurrence in my hand, and having preserved presence of mind enough to note the instant when it ceased, I am inclined to believe that three oscillations occurred every second. The subterranean noise was dreadful, infinitely louder than any I ever heard, and I have been in many thunder storms on the summit of the Andes. Many poor people lost their lives, and all were driven to the surrounding desert, to seek safety in distance from the dangerous vicinity of walls and houses.

On the evening preceding the two earthquakes, of which I have spoken, the atmosphere was very dense, an ominous inexplicable stillness seemed to prevail, broken only at intervals by the breathing of an air of wind, which appeared to have no determined direction, and was felt within doors the same as in the street. The atmosphere appeared to be in a highly electrical state, and many people taking notice of these things, were in some degree prepared for the coming calamity. Nor was the howling of the dogs and braying of jack-asses during the night disregarded. In countries exposed to earthquakes people acquire a habit of observing any thing considered as an indication, as well a delicacy in the perception, of the slightest shake, which appears to a stranger ridiculous timidity. Two or three circumstances came under my own observation, which seemed to prove that some powerful agent is at work in the atmosphere, besides the hidden ones below the surface. A great number of empty glass phials I found next day standing where they had been left, about the room. A few others, containing different liquids, were thrown from the shelves and broken, but no empty one had even fallen on its side. On a highly varnished new table, at which I had the night before been reading, the varnish became so fluid that it passed through the boards of several books, and the next day they appeared as if glued to the mahogany. From several large earthern jars sunk in the earth, water was thrown in considerable quantity over the mouth although in none of them was it nearer to the top than three to four feet. One singularity in the dog is remarked here, and it is, that immediately after a shock, whether strong or weak the whole dogs of the place run to drink at the nearest water.

FEMALE SEMINARY, EASTON.

MISS NICOLS AND MRS. SCULL'S SEMINARY will be ready for the reception of pupils on the 22d September. The course of study to be pursued, will be as heretofore, with the exception of some ornamental branches, for which they propose employing an assistant as soon as circumstances will authorise.

For the better regulation of the classes, and for the facility of learning, they propose dividing the year into two sessions, six months each, hoping, thereby, to render a public examination both practicable and interesting. Public examinations have been much neglected in this Institution, owing to the fact, that the classes are so fluctuating, it would have derogated both from the Teachers and pupils. We hope the friends of science will take this into consideration, and if not assist us directly in the execution of our plan, will throw no obstacles in the way.

Mr. & Mrs. Hamilton's BOARDING SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES.

THIS Institution is situated in the most healthful and pleasant part of the city, corner of Saratoga and Courtland sts. Baltimore.

After having conducted an extensive Boarding school for young ladies, for several years in North Carolina and Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton removed to this city in 1831, and opened a Seminary for young Ladies, upon a scientific plan, which has received an almost unprecedented patronage.

Mr. & Mrs. H. have liberally provided their school with every apparatus necessary to illustrate their instruction. Their philosophical apparatus is equal to any other that can be found in private Seminaries in this country, and their chemical is sufficiently extensive to illustrate any subject treated upon in the text books of the school. Their cabinet of minerals though small yet contains upwards of 700 specimens. Their Seminary is also furnished with an Armillary Sphere, Cary's, Wilson's and Gardner's Globes, several Pianos and a harp. Mr. & Mrs. H. beg leave to remark, that the instruments they possess, are the best they could procure in this country or in England.

The Library contains upwards of 1500 volumes of the best authors, as connected with the studies pursued in the school, to which the young ladies have general access.

In all the departments the most competent teachers have been engaged, whose instructions are given under the immediate eye of the principals.

The course of instruction in this institution, is carried on in a regular and continued system of academic studies embracing all the scientific and ornamental branches necessary to a complete course of female education.

Parents and guardians who wish for more particular information, can obtain a prospectus of the seminary by applying to the edibr.

☞The Frederick and Annapolis papers; Hagerstown Courier; National Intelligencer; Easton Whig; Port Deposite Courant; will advertise the above once a week each, to the amount of $4, and send bills to this [American] office.
