THE SISTERS.

There be three sisters sweet, But various in mind-One darling, yet discreet, True, humble, and resigned; She standerb, where would others fall, And trusteth God for all in all.

Another, bright of mien, And jubilant with life; She spyeth the unseen, Beyond all earthly strife. Who hath this fair, vivacious maid, Hath sunshine in the darkest shade.

The last is all divine-The greatest and the best. O world! were she but thine. Thou wert supremely blest, But whose hath these sisters three, Hath Faith, and Hope, and Charity.
