

dignified, tender and almost meaningless - As there are some objects so brilliant - that their splendor is diminished by representation, so there are some characters so exalted, that they lose a portion of their greatness from the language of eulogium - The sensibility with which this death is felt, will indelibly record the public calamity -