

I remember I was back in the States some time in April. I decided that the Venezuela field was not worth going into and one of the employees of the Uihleins left with me for British Guiana. Naturally on arriving in British Guiana we were offered a number of lands by various interested parties who knew or believed that they contained bauxite.

Cyl. 12

THE EXAMINER: What were you trying to do down there, buy bauxite?

THE WITNESS: I was trying to acquire a sufficient tonnage for the Uihlein Group so that they could go into the aluminum business which had been their expressed desire at that time.

BY MR. WHITELEY:

Q How long were you in British Guiana on this trip, Mr. Emery?

A I sailed from the States in January and I returned there the last of March or the first of April. I presume I was there about a month.

Q And what year was that?

A That was in 1913.

Q Was that the same year in which you made the trip to Venezuela?

A The same year. I didn't go to Venezuela, I went only as far as Trinidad. Trinidad is only a port of entry for Venezuela.
