

A I was represented by an English solicitor and barrister.
Q Do you know who represented the Demerara Banknote Company before the Privy Council?

A The barrister representing them was Sir John Simon,
the solicitor in the case was Sir Charles Russell & Co.
Q You say you were present when the Privy Council handed down its decision?

A I was present.
Q Will you state whether this decision was in favor of or against the Demerara Banknote Company?
MR. SMITH: I object to that as incompetent and irrelevant.

THE EXAMINER: If you know, you can testify.
THE WITNESS: The decision was in favor of James Melville Hubbard, Chester Humphreys and myself.
Q In other words they confirmed the decision of the lower court?

A They confirmed the decision and did not set it aside.
Q Can you give us, after refreshing your recollection, the date when the Privy Council handed down this decision?
MR. SMITH: I object to that as incompetent and irrelevant.

THE EXAMINER: If you can refresh your memory to testify, I will let you do it.
THE WITNESS: May 15, 1923.
