

Q Who are they?
A I can't name them specifically; I cannot name the subsidiaries that own them, but I believe the subsidiaries are owned by the Aluminum Company of America.
Q That is to say that all of the commercially available bauxite in Alabama is owned by a subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America?
A Not all, but by various companies interested in the production of it.
Q How much owned by the Aluminum Company of America?
A I have not those figures.
Q How many open mines are there in Alabama where bauxite is being worked?
A I know there are several.
Q How many?
A I cannot exactly answer that.
Q Where are they?
A Along the Atlantic.
Q That is a great big ocean, the Atlantic?
A Bauxite deposits extend along the Atlantic from the upper end down to the lower end, not continuously, but there are bauxite deposits.
Q And all of these are owned by metal producers?
A I should say the ones that are of any value.
Q There are ones there that are not owned by metal pro-