Dear Lloyd:

Your letter enclosing check for $211.40 in full payment of your account with me received this morning. I appreciate deeply your successful efforts in sending this money as it will be most helpful to me at this time. I hope that before long, we will both be on our feet financially and will be able to exchange more courtesies of this sort if necessary. It has been a pleasure to me as well as a matter of some profit to have accommodated you in the matter of loans. I have always had every confidence in your ability to make good in your present business and feel that you will have the cash coming in in good shape before the end of the current year. When you have a chance to balance up your books, if you find that there is any other small interest due me, you can send it along to me at your leisure.

As I am leaving town for a few days, I cannot write you in greater length and mother joins me in much love.

Sincerely,

L. B. Emory
