

BROAD STREET STATION,
Philadelphia.

March 22, 1911.

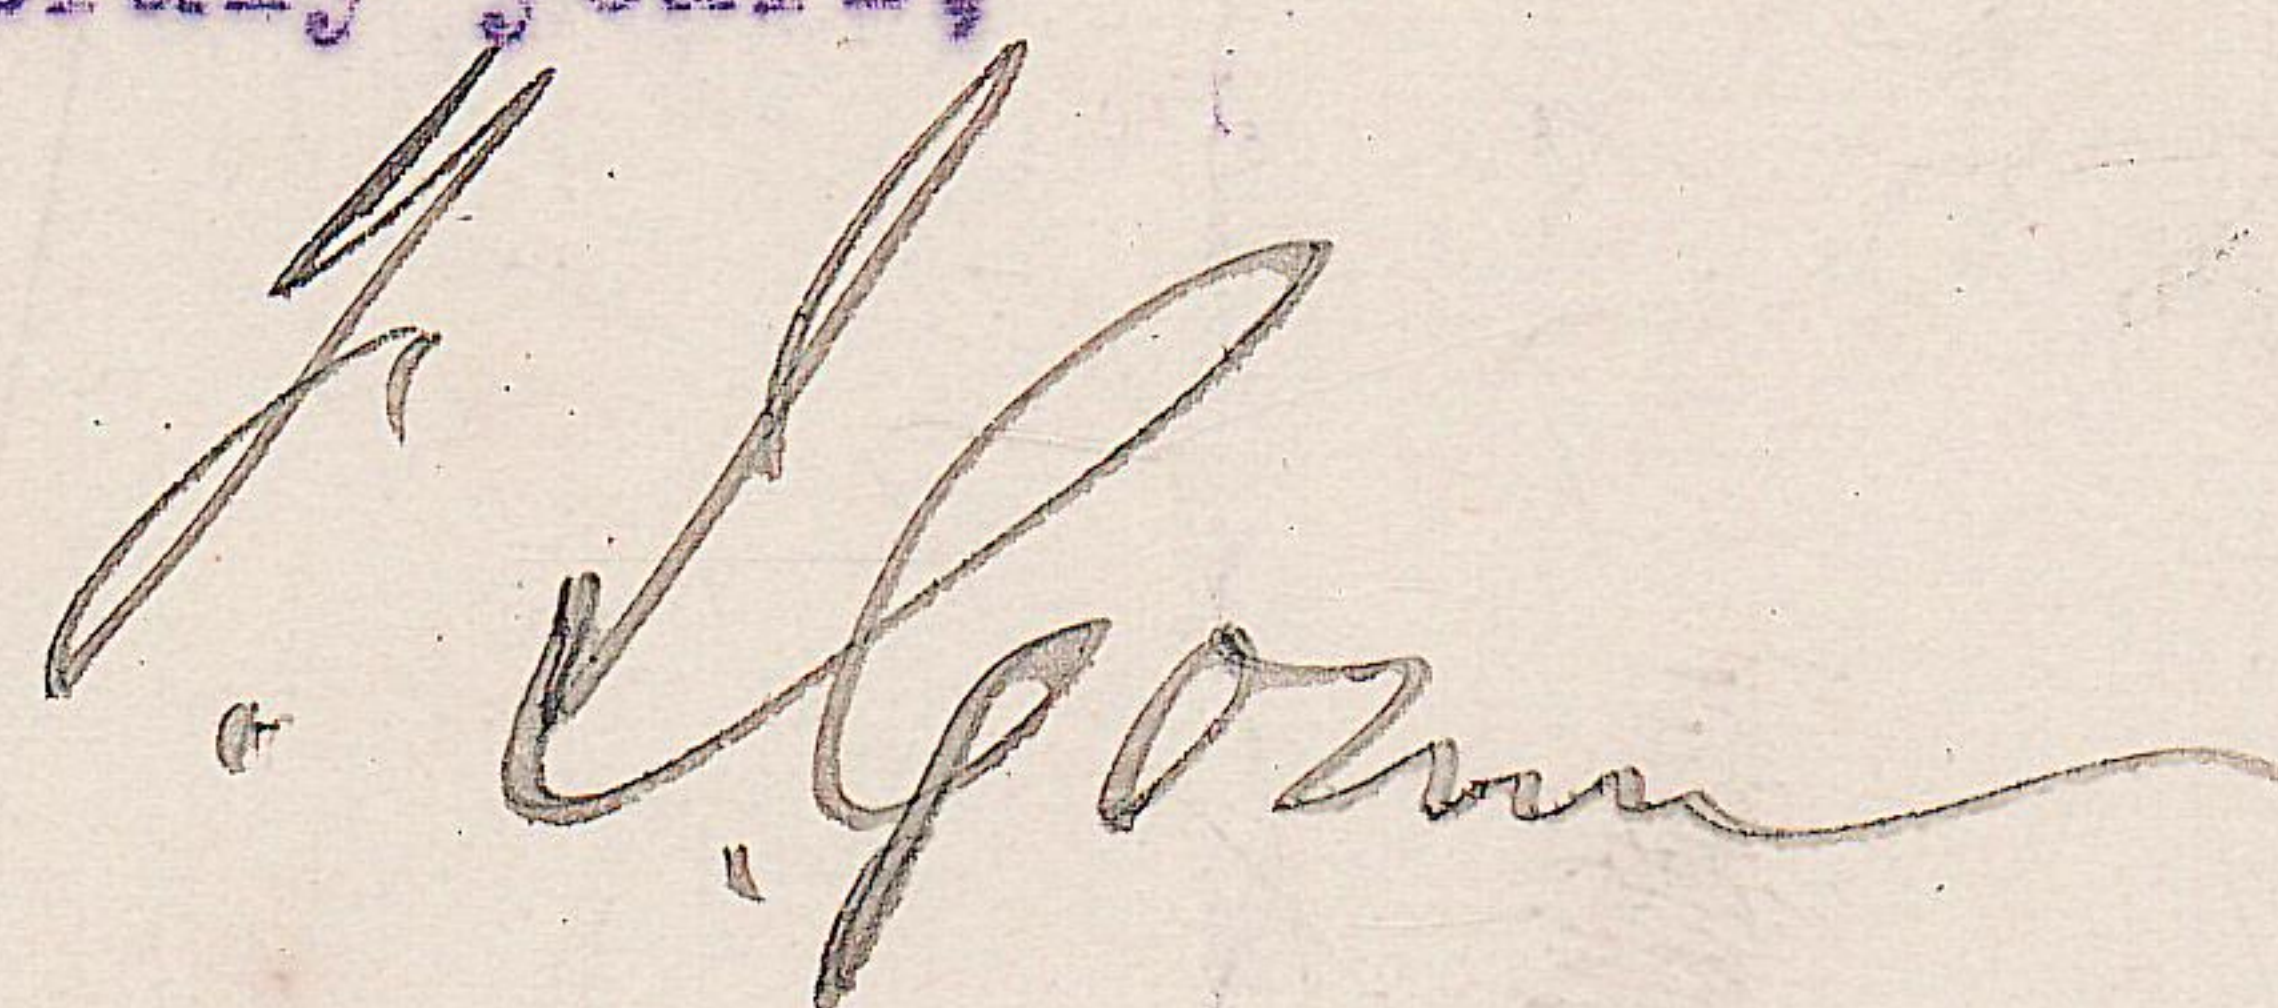

Mr. Lloyd T. Emory,

6019 Main St., Germantown, Phila.

My dear Lloyd:-

I do not believe that I have ever written you acknowledging the receipt of your letter of January 18th last and of the check for $250. which was enclosed therewith, this being the balance of the amount heretofore loaned you by me while you were pursuing your studies in the University. I have just come across this letter under a pile of papers, and as I have no recollection of having written you heretofore, I am now sending you this very tardy acknowledgement of the receipt of your check.

Very truly yours,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "J. L. Gorman". The signature is written in a cursive style with a long, sweeping underline.