My dear Emory:

Your letter asking me to send you my note for $200. for the mares duly to hand. If you can give me a little more time it would be a great favor. To pay the $200. in six months will strain me, because I have so many notes to take up in the next six months. When Wails and Mr Henshaw consulted me about breeding the mares. I told them that my outstanding obligations would not permit me to do same any more until Spring when I could tell what I could do. and they said you told them you would give me me all the time I wanted and make it easy for me.
