An Open Letter.

From General Raum, Commissioners of Pensions.

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 1, 1888.

DR. HARTLEY, BALTIMORE, MD.:

In the winter of 1877 I suffered very seriously from Catarrh; failing to obtain relief otherwise, I resorted to the use of your Catarrh Remedy with entire satisfaction. The application of the remedy was painless, and my nose, head, and throat were soon relieved. I keep a bottle of the remedy in the house for use in case of a bad cold and find it invaluable.

GREEN B. RAUM.

On His Pastor's Advice.

BALTIMORE, MD., May 28, 1891.

"Unsolicited by anyone, but caused by the wonderful cure effected in my health, I wish to publicly make known that the sufferings from catarrh may, and can be cured.

"I had catarrh for many years. During the past twelve months I have not been able to attend to business; a year, in fact, has passed as a blank in my life. I had tried, it seemed to me, all kinds of remedies, but grew worse all the time. My weight became reduced from two hundred and fifteen pounds to one hundred and thirty-nine. I could eat nothing for eleven weeks; my palate was gone and my throat was full of ulcers. Taste and smell were things of the past, and everything I drank returned through the nose.

"Being in this condition anyone can easily imagine my distress. My pastor came, as I lay in bed, and urged me to consult Dr. Hartley. I did so and, with thanks to the giver of all good, I am now restored to my normal condition of health, I feel myself a new man. I have found the benefit of consulting a reliable practitioner and advise others, similarly afflicted, not to delay, as I did (until nearly dead) but to consult Dr. Hartley of 326 N. Eutaw street. I found him a gentleman, his charges most reasonable and I will gladly answer all enquiries in reference to my case at my home, No. 445 East Fourth St.
