

Well I liked the breeding of this little mare, so traded for her, I got her from a very wealthy man, and he paid for her, a quarter of $225. In a few weeks after purchasing her, she received a kick from a horse on her left hind knee. The knee became very much enlarged and she was very lame for a year, after that she could make out to get around, by limping.
Her owner became discouraged, so turned her out, and in the fall after she was three years old, brought her to Garrison, and I think without any exception, it is the finest colt I ever saw, and can beat faster, never ^{have} been handled.
After I got her, two months ago, I
