

number of a jury should in every case be competent to render a verdict.

If any of the family would like to give me any information on the subject, I should be glad to have it.

Yesterday afternoon I went with Edward and two other fellows to see the Harvard freshmen beat the Yale freshmen. It was a very close game and Harvard made <sup>an</sup> ~~my~~ fumble, winning chiefly by good luck. If the whistle had blown about a minute later, it is probable that Yale would have scored, as the ball was only three or four yards from Harvard's goal.

It has been snowing all day, so that there is about five inches of snow on the ground now.

I expect to go see a fellow named
