bad luck. Last year, the captain² lost his head, the year before the wind was too strong, etc." Nobody, however, can deny that Harvard played a very good game and had bad luck. For, three of her best men could not play, and all of the umpire's decisions, though not unfair, were against her. I think that Harvard fully expects to beat Pennsylvania, but has a wholesome fear of her.

So much for foot-ball. I got a D in English, the lowest possible passing mark. I am not worrying much about it, but I intend to work harder in it, even if it is at the expense of my other subjects.
