certain questions such as, "if there is a God who is merciful and almighty, why does he make human beings suffer so much?" Of course we answered as well as we could, and had a long talk. I am not at ^{all} sorry that we did argue, in fact, I am glad, as it set me thinking a little.

I'll admit that for a while, I was somewhat shaken in what little faith I have, but I believe that I am all the better for it now.

It is now growing late, but I close, I want to ask thee please to tell me in thy next letter what arrangements, if any, thee has made ^{for me} about the Friday evening dancing class.

With much love, I am
Thy Son
