

to read the life and
letters of Erasmus.
Froude. and find it interesting. Helen has
it as a preparatory course of lectures by Hudson Chau, which she hopes to attend in January.

The weather still
favors building, and the house has its two coats of brown plastering except in the bath rooms.
Even Father seems
satisfied with the progress lately.

I wish John were going to put on two more plates for our Sunday dinner. He is setting the table, which made me think of it, but you will soon be home now.
