

attached to him and Mrs. Davis but frankly told him she hated him for what he had said in the Senate the day before, and would rather be in her coffin than live to see what she was sure was coming.
 She said "Farrar thinks the South will fight - it never will. We shall be two countries living peaceably side by side." Mrs. G. asks, and what kind of countries? two miserable weak things for France and England to swallow up. ^{W.D.C.} Not at all, there will be an alliance offensive and defensive.
 So little was the dreadful struggle anticipated.
 Mrs. Gillespie also saw General Lee and Joe Johnston near Washington. in the distance We have seen Monticello, the