And you April 4, 1900.

My darling wife,

Your letter of the 3rd I have just received & read which is a great comfort to me - and I feel very miserable about your health - as that indignation should be stopped if possible - when I go to a Dr. you will go with me - for I considered I am now in as good health as you are only that - I am more complaining. This is the first time I have had a chance to write you since my return

Except a card - It would make us much more miserable to be without my salary - and of course the only thing to do is to stick to it. I am much better than I have been for months - I am glad to hear you went to Charles Gibson's funeral - I suppose you had Jack with you last night - did Annie come over - He had a miserable day yesterday and it has been much today - I will send you the potatoes in a short time
