

I really think the most of that is unnecessary -

I have made up my mind not to give way to my feelings any more - to cheer up, for I look at it as sinful as I have been going on - it will only affect me but every one I am thrown in contact with. I would times think you have very little to encourage you - except the care of a house of farm - & the demands of 4 children which is enough of its self to wear out most of normal - I hope Harry's eyes will improve now that he has you to care for there - I guess the Purdies & Furbush is all right - I will be delighted when the time will come for me to come home as I want to see you all fully -

Let me hear from you when you can -

Yours ever loving
Harry
