

Came down here to work shucking oysters for Mr Hardin (dead) he was a settled man - a middle-aged man. He came from Battinore and shucked oysters during the season - then went back to Battinore, then came back another season. He was here about three seasons. I think he married Susan on his second trip, and they moved to Battinore.

I can tell you nothing whatever about any prior marriage of Samuel Johnson. I only know that it was understood ^{here} that he left his other wife for Susan Haters. When he left her, or who she was, or whether he was legally married to her I cannot tell, and cannot refer you to any one who can.
