

and energy the Services to which you may think proper to direct this force.

You will find in the Instructions to Sir J. Beckwith, of which I enclose you a Copy, and to which their Lordships direct your particular attention, a Statement of the view of the Government as to the chief particulars connected with the employment of this force -

My Lords cannot at this distance decide on what may be the most advantageous employment of this force; they entrust the Choice of the Object to your judgment on the actual view which you may have of the advantage of the King's Service, and the State of the
