

the importance of our observations to the Blacks to act I think should to them the free settlers which they will to the danger in the
to them generally to receive & in their use them as Black Regiment
from the West Indies, may very probably have great effect amongst them but Blacky hercubats is naturally neither very violent nor very active - There are at Greenbridge with explain to you a few inhabitants on the Islands; the occupation of which I contemplate. I shall of course inform them of Protection both for their Persons & Property, but you will oblige me by informing me by the first opportunity, how far I may venture to promise them or others in similar situations (who receive us kindly & assist us as far as may be in their Power) Indemnification for any losses which they may unavoidably sustain from our occupying green difficulty we manage now by them to get a fresh meat for the crews of the few Ships now acting here, ~~see~~ the Americans are in the habit of turning their Cattle loose into the Woods whenever they observe us approaching the shore or hear of our landing - Captain Poyt spared me a Victuals vessel on the way to this place under command of the Admiral, if however she should not have left Bermuda before she arrives