

with six Seamen of that Corps, occupied a Six Gun Battery on the Ferry Branch known by the name of Fort Patcocks.

Lt. Trazier of the Flotilla with 40 Seamen of the same Corps, occupied a Three Gun Battery near the Lazaretto.

And Lt. Rutter the senior Officer of the Flotilla in Command of all the Barges, which were moored at the entrance of the Passage between the Lazaretto and Fort McHenry in the left wing of the Water Battery, of which was Stationed Sailing Master Rodmond and six Seamen of the Flotilla.

To the Officers, Seamen and Marines of the Guerrier, considering the privations they experienced and the cheerfulness and zeal with which they encountered every obstacle, every acknowledgement is due, and it would be as impossible for me to say too much in their praise, as it would be unworthy of the Station I hold, not to mention that their discipline and good conduct, is owing in a preeminent degree, to the indefatigable attention and exertions of that highly estimable Officer Lt. Gamble.
