

me what the Society undertakes to perform in behalf of Emigrants, if they have their passage free - the articles with which it is important they should be furnished, and, if any, what the Society will supply - the provision made for them on their arrival - in short, any information you can give that you may deem useful to persons under such circumstances, will be very acceptable. My own circumstances will admit of rendering him but very inconsiderable pecuniary aid. I should also be glad to have it in my power to give all needed information to the free person who will probably migrate with him - If you think any advantage would be gained by a personal interview, I would send him to Baltimore to see you -
Yours respectfully
Wm. Bidwell
