Dr. James Hall

Dear Sir

345
I have from Mr. Gurley, that Mr. Medwin thinks just as you do about the little steamer. I shall therefore let him an example of doing as I have urged him ~~to~~ to do, — get the opinions of the rest of us on every new project, before doing anything towards its execution; and if they dissent, give it up at once and entirely. This, I have told him, is the only possible way to secure that "harmony" and "united action" which he talks so much about.

I dislike that circular, and have sent my criticisms
