My Dear Sir

138 / I regret that I ~~should~~ published the extract from your letter without having your written sanction. "But to err is human." I supposed you desired me to use your opinion in such way as might seem for the good of the cause. It was a sad case I had to deal with any how, and I thought you understood the matter better than all others. The promise I now give ~~you~~ ^{you} never again to print aught from your hand without your sanction. Most truly your friend RR Quincy
