My dear Sir

I am led to suppose that the address at the head of Mr. Norman's letter, which I return herewith, will be sufficient, adding only the word, "England".

Much obliged by the information given concerning the sailing of your vessel; we shall have nothing, I suppose, of much bulk - a few boxes it may be.

Please do not credit me in the manner proposed - the gift, if you are so disposed to regard it, is not mine. I paid the expense because I thought the publication of the cut in your paper was calculated to serve the interests of our work.
