Dr. James Hall

II A25

Dear Sir. Per. John S. Simon, a native of the West Indies, a regularly licensed Congregationalist preacher, who expects to receive ordination next Sabbath, had engaged passage in our ship as ~~an~~ emigrant, for himself and wife. He chose a stowage passage, both to save expense, and to place himself on familiar terms with the other emigrants. He chose to go, not connected with any missionary society, yet a little farm or other means of self support, and then try to do good as he should find opportunity. His arrangements for going were so completed, that the failure is a great disadvantage to him.

Can they go in the Beuron? When? and on what terms? They will want to take more than two barrels each of luggage, but not a great amount. Of course, the accommodations cannot be so good as on board the Stevens. Still, they may be glad of such as the Beuron can give.

Please answer as soon as practicable, and tell me more particularly why the Stevens is not sent, so that I can answer questions; and thereby you will greatly oblige

Yours truly,

Joseph Tracy
