Dr. James Hall

Dear Sir. I know, by experience, that "hopping on two sticks" is not a very pleasant mode of locomotion, but as I much prefer it to being tied to one stick and laid flat on my back, I am glad that you can avail yourself of it.

I thank you for relieving my mind from some anxiety. From what I heard from South, fully confirmed by Whitney, I feared that a voyage to Liverpool, with freight, to bring back Richardson, would prove a losing voyage, especially in the present English laws, framed and administered to impede emigration, would require
