to suffer for the sake of opening up this country - who, if through misfortune they have some white blood in their veins are not afraid of having it absorbed by the blood of their maternal ~~people~~ ^{ancestry}, and who therefore will think it no calamity to intermarry with the natives as fast as they are evolved - The only real strength I am convinced of this country must come from the interior; and Colonizationists who are more interested in the solution of a continent than in riding the U.S. of a few offensive negroes, should constantly point Liberia to this work.
