Dear Sir. My very many obligations to you, for your attention & kindness in aiding me while in Baltimore, made it my duty to call upon you, before leaving your city.
This duty I was in the act of discharging, on the morning of my going away, when your boy met me with a letter & informed me that you were sick: an event not surprising, considering the amount of responsibility & care that for some time had lain upon you. We have been glad to learn through different sources since then, that you had got about again. We hope your son, now that warmer weather has come, is entirely recovered from his attack of the measles, & Miss Caroline enjoys uninterruptedly good health after her African
