Dr James Hall

Dear Sir

You see by this that I am still among the mountains of Greenelounty. But the frost has killed every thing & last night it froze the ground some considerably. Yesterday it snowed & hailed most of the day, which added to the other evidences of the advancing cold season, advise me firs being about time to look for warmer quarters.

In a week or so more, I shall set out for New York;

I have heard nothing as yet of the return of the Stevens, but supposing she will be on hand
