

Baltimore. How could I consistently have done otherwise! It is true I might have let the matter run along, and paid the bill in full when it was presented out of my own pocket, which I did not feel called upon to do.

In regard to my "assent" to have the Am. Col. Soc. pay it, I suppose it would amount to nothing, any more than it would for me to give my assent that the Society should pay the extra freight on goods belonging to any other emigrant. My voice in matters of that sort would be of little avail, if it was not regarded as out of place.

But I have said much more than I designed to when I sat down - please excuse these
