INAUGURATION NOTES.

The following "Stalwarts," of Democracy led by the Veteran, Col. George S. Biddle who was President of the Rock Hall Wilson and Marshall Club attended the inauguration in a body: Capt. James R. Downey, Col. George S. Biddle, Messrs. A. Carroll Wilson, Benj. Coburn, W. Reybold Wilson, C. F. Wheatley, John Brice, B. Neal Willson, Capt. G. F. Akers, W. W. Clayton, John L. Lewis, Fred Williams, R. Sterling Jones.

One story going the rounds, is, of a little party of the "boys" who after tireing of the sights decided to hunt a place where some liquid and refreshments could be obtained; and after being led to a handsome building by a well-known Democrat of the fifth and assured by him that their wants could there be supplied, followed him on in, and after ascending several flights of steps, one of the party timidly raised his hat and inquired of a lady the way to Buffett. The lady smilingly replied that they had nothing of the kind as that was the Young Womans Christian Temperance Union Building. With profuse apoligies, and as much decorum as the Hikers, could possibly have shown, the little party silently made their exit, all a little wiser but a little thirstier.

Birthday Surprise Party.—A big surprise party was given Mrs. Wm. H. Bonwill on Saturday evening to celebrate her birthday. The crowd gathered at the gate and went to the house "en masse," finding Mr. and Mrs. Biddle Hossinger "holding the fort." There were songs, speeches and readings, then we enjoyed a dessicated menu, for which the following prizes were awarded: Mrs. John Bennett, "honor" prize, box of snuff; Mrs. A. L. Harris, second prize, ball of yarn; Messrs. Wm. Medders and A. L. Harris tied for first gentleman's prize, so the former received "an article to use in restraining the youthful activities of his children." Mr. William Ford, consolation prize, stick of candy. The following were present: Messrs. and Mesdames Eugene Bonwell, Roy Bonwell, S. J. Roseberry, John Bennett, Carson Harris, Charles Walter, William Ford, Wm. Medders, John Parrott, Mrs. Jas. Weer, Mr. Hartley Weer, Mr. Harris Crew, Misses Emma Meeks, Elizabeth Pennington, Jessie Crew, Edna Wroth, Mrs. Lulu Dukes and Mrs. Kate Crew. The crowd presented Mrs. Bonwell with a beautiful table cloth and napkins.

POULTRY NOTES.

THE LEGHORN.

The name Leghorn covers a multitude of sins; and this is only natural when we consider that this, probably the most extensively bred fowl in America has been popular for nearly 80 years and during all that time has had no recognized standard weight. There are 8 standard varieties, White, Brown and Buff, both single and rose comb, and the Black, and Silver Duckwing single comb. Also the Red Pyle Leghorn, not standard, and the Dominique Leghorn which was admitted to the standard in 1874 and shortly after thrown out. They resemble the Barred Rocks in plumage and are still bred in England as Cuckoo Leghorns. At one time the "Onconas" were known as Spotted Leghorns and are considered by many to be the best layers of them all.

The White and the Brown Leghorns are distinctly American although they originated from Italy. They owe their shape and nothing else to the common fowl of Italy from which they involved, in every other respect they are American. The Buff was produced by Mr. Wm. Key, of England and in 1888 a pullet was on exhibition in London. The Buffs do not enjoy the popularity of the White or Brown. The Duckwing and Pyle were also produced in England and are both beautiful creations but essentually show birds.

The origin of the Black Leghorn is still greatly in doubt. The general census of opinion being that Leghorns in all colors except black came from Italy. Yet we read in the Poultry World of 1876 that: "Mr. Reed Watson has some Black Leghorns direct from the vessel in which they were imported from Italy." The Black Leghorn of to-day was an undoubted production of England and is a cross of Leghorn and Minorca. They are extensively bred in England but do not enjoy a very large following in this country.

The White Leghorn, both male and female, is white throughout, including quills, beak, shanks, and toes, yellow; eyes red; face bright red; ear lobes white and wattles red. The male comb is erect and the female falls to one side in all varieties of this breed. The color of the Brown Leghorn combines reddish bay, rich red with distinct markings of black making a very showy bird. The female is a beautiful brown, the body feathers finely stippled with a darker shade.

The most popular weight are probably 3½ to 4 lbs. for the hen and 5 lbs. for the cock, though many run greately in excess of this, and again we frequently see them no bigger than bantams. Fanciers are as bad offenders in this respect as anybody, and it is only that the Leghorn is so eminently suited to a white egg market that it has held its place.

While the Leghorn is certainly entitled to recognition as a wonderful egg producer it is never the less true that it owes its present promiment position to a misunderstanding. There is and has been for many years a premium on white eggs in the New York market, and when the Leghorn eggs back in the early 1870 were first received in any quantities they were branded "white Leghorn eggs," and this was later construed to mean eggs from White Leghorns' so that to this is certainly due to a large extent the fact that the White Leghorn is looked upon as the fowl for commercial egg farms. It is assuredly a fact that the Brown Leghorn and the Anconas lay equally as well if not better. It is also worthy of note that the Leghorn being a non setting breed has added to their reputation as egg producers. They have never absolutely demonstrated their ability to outlay the best of the American breeds, and have certainly not done so as far as winter egg production is concerned. However they are good layers of a large white egg, and if carefully handled stand confinement well and are small feeders, but they are not a utility breed, being too small.

Injunction Suit—Work on the new railroad station at Princess Anne was begun by W. S. & A. M. Culp, of Chestertown, the contractor. The proposed improvement calls for a station almost the duplicate of the one at Laurel, Del., with two waiting rooms steam heat and gas light. The contract calls for completion of the work by July 1.

It may be delayed, however, much longer, as the Princess Anne Milling Co. has begun proceedings for an injunction against the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad Co., to restrain it from the further prosecution of its enterprise, on the ground that the new station will block the opening of William St., which is called for in the deeds of the Milling Co. and the Railroad Co. FREE ADVICE TO SICK WOMEN

Thousands Have Been Helped By Common Sense Suggestions.

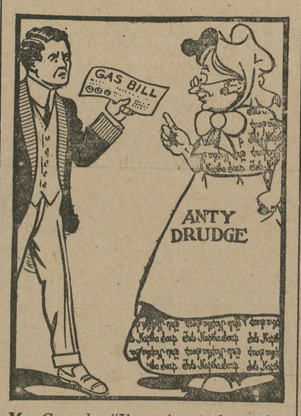

LYDIA E PINKHAM

Women suffering from any form of female ills are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

Mr. Grouch—"I'm going to have the gas range taken out! I won't pay another bill this size! It's using the range all day on washday that costs so much."

Anty Drudge—"Do stop fussing about that bill! Just get your wife a cake of Fels-Naptha Soap. You won't have any more quarrels, because she doesn't need to use hot water, and can save gas."

Certainly no woman would deliberately make part of her work twice as hard and take twice as long as is necessary.

Yet that is what the woman is doing who clings to the old-fashioned way of washing clothes.

Fels-Naptha Soap will do all the hard work, will get the dirt out of the clothes without boiling or hard rubbing, in half the time, and in cool or lukewarm water.

Just follow the easy directions on the Red and Green Wrapper.
