FOLLOWING the parcel post the express companies are to reduce their rate from 10 to 60 per cent on food stuffs. The express trust was forced into this move by the Interstate Commerce Commission which has announced a drastic reduction of express rates to go into effect on October 15th. THE cow shed on the Greenwood farm owned by Mr. Mannie Clendaniel was struck by lightining and somewhat damaged.

THE sale of "Hill Top" has been called off and the new purchaser has returned to Chestertown.

SOME excitement was caused Sunday morn when stored furniture in Mr. John Brock's stable loft, on Calvert street fell with a crush. The neighbors thought a gas stove had exploded!

Investigating a Death.

Upon request of State's Attorney H. W. Vickers and Mr. Lonnie Stevens the commissioners on Monday granted the employment of a detective in solving the mystery surrounding the death of Mr. S.'s brother, Mr. George Stevens, a bachelor who lived in a shanty on the Strong farm, opposite Gratitude Wharf. The body of Mr. Stevens was found floating in Swan Creek two weeks ago last Sunday and reported in the NEWS. The jury of inquest, after examining several witnesses and the physician, rendered a verdict that Stevens came to his death by accidentally falling from his boat while rowing from Gratitude Wharf to his shanty.

Since the burial of Mr. Stevens circumstances have arisen and evidence has been produced, it is claimed, which lead to the belief that Mr. Stevens did not drown, but that he was the victim of foul play, and that his body was thrown into Swan Creek to avert suspicion. Mr. Stevens had visited his brother on the Sunday of his death and while his body was found floating in Swan Creek his boat was found two miles away, and those who are work upon the murder theory claim that it was impossible for Mr. Stevens' body to come to the surface in less than 24 hours or to be found floating in Swan Creek on account of the tide if he had fallen from his boat.

The authorities claim to have found the motive for the death of Mr. Stevens and while they maintain absolute secrecy at present they have divulged enough information to make it plain that there is a woman in the case

LADY CATCHES THIEF.

Miss Jane Blackiston, a well-known lady resident of Washington avenue, showed her pluck Tuesday morning when she captured a thief in the act of stealing her pocketbook. Last week the homes of W. Frank Jarrell, C. S. Smith and others were robbed of rings, handkerchiefs, watch, chain, &c. The day on which the thefts took place and the circumstances pointed to a young Queen Anne's huckster who accompanied his father. About two weeks ago Miss Blackston missed her gold watch and chain shortly after the suspect had left her home. Tuesday morning she saw the party under suspicion approaching and she quickly decided to lay a trap for him. Procuring a revolver, she took a position behind a door in her kitchen after laying an empty money purse on a table nearby.

The young man entered the yard as usual on his regular trip, rapped once or twice on the door and receiving no response opened the door and entered. He soon espied the purse, and after furtive glances about the room, picked it up and placing it in his pocket started to make a hasty exit, only to be confronted by Miss Blackston with weapon in hand. The young man plead for leniency and protested his innocence of former offences, but was made to hand over not only the purse, but the gold watch that had been taken several weeks previous. He offered to pay Miss Blackiston fifty cents not to tell his father, but she did not comply with his request. The father was told and promised to make a search and return all articles found. The lad was arrested and held for court.
