FARMING AND HELP.

There has been a large number of personal property sales on farms, and most of these sales represent the force of the labor question. Young men are discontinuing farming, now at an age when they would have been commencing, years ago. Many of them are compelled to quit because they can't stand the work, and can't secure the help to save their crops. Machinery has been a big help in putting crops in the ground and cutting them when ripe, but machinery does not handle the crops afterwards. A great deal of farm work must still be done by manual labor.

Large farms especially, are hard to operate successfully, by men who have not sons to help along with the work, which means that the smaller farms—from 50 to 100 acres—are most in demand, and these should be owned, rathered than tenanted. Many of our young men farmers work hard a few years on large farms, as tenants, then buy a small farm or go into some other work.

The fact is, labor conditions are such in the country, that it is remarkable that so much produce is grown and marketed. It is also true that the kind of farming that men are now forced to do, is often not the kind that theories speak wisely of—raising more from land per acre than is raised—but it is the best that can be done, under prevailing conditions. Farmers are human beings, after all, and are under no obligation to the consumers to break themselves down physically, simply in order that the food supply may be abundant and cheap.

What farming and the whole country needs, is more small farms and more people per square mile in our agricultural sections. Those who leave the farm for the city have no right to expect those who remain to work harder in order to feed the growing cities. There is just as much land in the country as ever, but it can't be made to produce to its full limit unless there are men to cultivate it. Moreover, farm owners should be farmworkers, and not investors. Let these problems be worked out, and there will be no scarcity of food products.—Carroll Record.

A. COHEN did not have time to change his adv. this week but look out for next week. He will have something to interest you. He wants 35 crates of eggs and will pay 3 cents each.

Public Library Proposed.—The Women's Literary Club is planning to turn over to Chestertown as a nucleus for a greater public library its splendid collection of nearly 2000 volumes. As a preliminary step to this end, the ladies announce that they will open their library two days each week for the use of the public as a reading room, when all who wish may have free access to their books. To perfect arrangements for this innovation and convenience, a public meeting of members of the club and of others who may be interested will be held Tuesday, Oct. 21st,. A large attendance is desired.

GRANGE NOTES.

Fairlee Grange held a most instructive and enjoyable meeting last Wednesday, beginning at 4 30 p. m. The hall was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, asparagus, handsome flowers, and abundance of fruits and vegetables. After the business session which are always of importance, Worthy Pomona, Miss Ida C. Crew presided. Her address on fruits, vegetables and nuts was a new feature, and the audience was much pleased with the discription, cultivation and propigation of the tropical fruits. The Bentztown Bard's "Maryland Peaches" was well read by Miss Caroline Smith. Mrs. T. E. W. Crew read in her usual clear and happy manner, "Down with the sulphor in dried, dried fruits" showing that fruit should be evaporated without chemical for bleaching as it is injurious. Mrs. W. G. Smyth read a highly instructive paper on "Food value of fruits." After the reading of a paper written by Mr. Walter Harris and read by Mr. E. A. Corey upon the subject of reclaiming old apple orchards for the production of high grade fruit," (this paper will be published next week.) Mr. James T. Anthony took up the subject and gave a clear and comprehensive discussion, in his usually pleasing manner, certainly if followed, Kent would produce many more and better apples. Attractive ways of serving fruit was responded to by several.

The program was interspersed with music by the Grange Choir, and solos by Miss Kattie Kendall and Mr. Frank Crow.

AN INTERESTING FACT

¶ When we state that last Saturday was the biggest day we have ever had in the history of our business, we do not say it boastfully.

¶ We merely make such a statement to prove that unless we had the goods—ready to deliver—we could never have done the business.

¶ Today there hangs on our clothing racks over $8,000.00 worth of Suits and Overcoats that range in price from $10.00 to $25.00. We have never carried such a complete and varied and costly an assortment since we have been in business, and we would never have put this line in this year if we didn't believe in the famous "Adler-Rochester" Clothes—the ready-to-wear kind.

¶ Take a word of advice from us and ask those who have dealt here and see if what we say is not true.

¶ Don't buy from a book of samples and IMAGINE and WONDER how your clothes will look or fit you—because its 90% disappointment.

¶ Don't wait from six to twenty days for guess work garments to be made up—come to us and we'll show them to you FINISHED and you take them now.

¶ There's too much chance in this so-called tailored stuff—if we didn't believe what we are saying we would close out our ready-to-wear clothes and take measures from a book. Instead, we have bought over $8,000.00 worth of Suits and Overcoats, that we guarantee to fit you perfectly from the stock—and you don't have to wait a minute to have them finished—they're ready for you now. Almost equal to the stock of a big city store—more clothing in our store today than all other stores in the county put together. See for yourself.

¶ You young fellows who have never worn an Adler garment—mail us a card and ask us to send you a booklet of their styles. It will open your eyes togood clothes and show you where you can save from $3.00 to $8.00 on a good ready-to-wear Suit of Clothes or Overcoat.

¶ Whether you are ready to buy or not, makes no difference. We will take pleasure in showing you these models and trying them on to prove our assertions and our claims. Call and see us when you are next in town and remember that you ought not to spend $5,00 extra for tailored stuff when we can give you the same goods for less money and a better fit at that.
