TH FIRST DECADE OF A WANDERING BOY

[Written especially for the KENT NEWS.]

I cannot help but think of some strange things, I remember the Reybolds had bought land in Worton and were hauling peaches by the school house to Delaware City in wagons three tier high. The first steamboat I ever saw was at Betterton. How I came to go there the fishermen at Betterton were about to have trouble. At that time the fishermen had poles strung half way across the bay to hang their nets to. The people of Baltimore notified the fishermen and told them if they did not pull up their stakes they would come and destroy tham at a certain time. Their notice created no little excitement and the sentiment of the farmers was with the fishermen. In those days shad were from eight to twelve cents, few farmers that did not put up their shad. So the people determined to resist any attempt to destroy the fishmen's property. The day had been named, the farmers and military people determined to go down there and I went with my father. I remember some of the prominent people there, among whom were Major Jas. Gale, Col. Geo. Gale, Capt. John Day Welch, and Col. Thos. Hepbron, and others. They met down there in an old sedge field opposite the Ericsson pier. I judge from what I can remember there were three hundred people there, and set an old cannon on the bank and waited for the intruder to come. A little while before noon up steamed the steamer Gov. Wolcott and laid off where the Ericsson pier now stands and after destroying what nets they could and taking fish out of them, though the military company had their muskets not a shot was fired. So supposed the cooked some of the fish they had and eat them and shook their table cloths to the people on the bank. So about two o'clock she steamed away without a shot being fired. The Gov. Wolcott came fully armed for a battle. After they were gone the people got very brave and denounced them. This was only a commencement for in after years they had a bill passed prohibiting them from using stake nets.

So now we come to the road from the school house to Urieville. The farmers along the road to Kennedyville were John Maxwell, Wm. Maxwell and Daniel Jones. Where Kennedyville now stands there was but one house where the old hotel stands and occupied by a colored man named Moses Allen, a well cleaner. On the left and up the road and on the farm now owned by Richard Lockwood which takes both sides of the road now as I have been told was a notorous Sims tavern. They had race tracks, cock fights, and dog fights. It was the halfway place on the stage route to Chestertown. It was also the slave market and was the worst place that was ever in Kent county. With all its iniquitious doings the end came and it was wiped out by fire. It was a large tract of land and finally when I knew it was a common. It was sold to Col. Jas. Boone who was a large land broker of Kent county.

From Kennedyville to Urieville the first farm on both sides of the road was the Hudson farm, the next was the Frank Cann farm, the next was the Constable or White house farm on both sides of the road. The lane that now goes in by the John R. Bennett farm opposite on the left was a man by the name of Furrow. I have noticed the lilies growing on the bank where the house was. In that tract there was 400 acres which was a common. There was another house on it occupied by a man name Argentine. They made hand baskets and sleigh baskets out of the willows cut from branch down there.

Now we come to Urieville, the largest village in the Second district then, owned by Jas. Urie, one of the best citizens of our county, beloved and respected by the people. He had a grist mill, a saw mill and a woolen mill that manufactured kersey for the slaves, the largest mill on the shore. We, the farmers took to him all the wool and wheat, there being no barrels of flour and exchanged the wool for kersey, yarn and blankets. There was one store there kept by Levi Deford, afterwards by Jno. L. Bowers. Deford died a few years ago at Church Hill.

Now we will go to Perkins Hill. As I remember on top the hill was three dwelling houses, in one of the houses lived John Mansfield, who used to be crier of the court. Around the Hill was Brooks woods where I used to go with my father and mother to camp meeting. Just beyond the Brice farm. Perkins mill was gone before I can remember. I remember part of the old mill house and I can only give you what I have heard. The Perkins were good people and done a large business. They furnished Washington with flour when he was at Valley Forge. On the right side coming from Perkins Hill about two hundred yards from the road there stands a group of tombstones to the memory of the Perkins family. I have several times in my life wanted to go there and look at those tombstones.

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION

IMPORTANT TO EVERYONE

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water, and often eat more rich, heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, annoying bladder troubles, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, may be weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

Many physicians claim that an herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enc ose ten cents; also mention the KENT NEWS, Chestertown, Md.
