THE SECOND DECADE OF A WANDERING BOY

[Written especially for the KENT NEWS.]

We bought our cakes and bread in Chestertown where I would have to go every two weeks, from Carl Stranburg who lived on the corner where Thos. Bordley's store now is. He got a large number of our big coppers. We had everything that was kept in a country store those days. Mr. Haines would not buy any shody goods. He bought sugar by the hogshead and molasses by the half dozen barrels, we sold molasses for twelve cents a gallon, green coffee eight and ten cents a pound. We sold medicine, epicac, jallap, calomel, sena and salts. In dry goods we sold most everything of that day, we did not sell ready-made clothing and a very few shoes and boots. Our busy day was Saturday, the white people would buy in the morning, and the colored people in the afternoon. In those days there was slavery and they had holiday every Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Haines, that good and motherly woman, kept a millinery store; now Mrs. Vannort and her children were there. Wm. Vannort was in Philadelphia. Mrs. Haines asked me if I could find the way to Delaware City that her brother is coming there with some carriages. I said I would try, so Mr. Haines said to me, can you find the way. I told him I thought I could. He drew the road and I started, and I stopped at Middletown to feed my horse and get my dinner. Then I started to Delaware City, got there and stopped at Hotel kept by a man named Frank Dunlap and stayed all night. I got up the next morning, fed my horse and got breakfast and went down to the wharf between 8 and 9 o'clock and the boat came. I could see Wm. Vannort on the boat, and how he did receive me, as if I had been his child, and wanted to know how I got there. We got the carriages together, geared up and started home. We got as far as Warwick, he then said we will feed our horses and get something to eat here. A man by the name of Bolton kept the place, they gave us a beefsteak for dinner. I think it was the toughest I ever had in my life. He (Mr. Vannort) could not eat it nor I could not eat it. It was almost equal to sole leather. Often in life in passing that place I have thought about Wm. Vannort and that beefsteak. We had six carriages, he had three and I had three hooked behind our horses.

Knowing well that we would get a good supper when we got to Still Pond we drove right briskly. We got to the Cross Roads about ten o'clock. Mrs. Haines met us, spoke to her brother, and said how did you get along. I told her first rate. Daniel Haines came and shook hands with me and said how did you get along, then he looked at his horse which he had prized very highly. He had bought the horse from Wm. Lizer who had a shop at St. James Church.

I went to Sunday school and church every Sunday, the old church stood right across where this one stands. I thought it was one of the most beautiful places on earth, with a green yard in front and fenced around with a beautiful walk to the stile, where we went out. People in those days went to church earlier than they go now, Sunday school half past eight, preaching was at ten o'clock; preaching was over, the benediction was pronounced, part of congregation would retire, the other part would stay to class meeting led by preacher. They had another class that was held every Sunday afternoon at the Harmony schoolhouse. I suppose it had sixty or seventy members. Now the class of the church was out at twelve o'clock. After that the colored people occupied the church and had their service. The old church with the gallery would seat as many persons as the new one seats. They had preaching every other Sunday as they had two preachers on a circuit, a Senior and a Junior. They preached at Rock Hall, old Hynson's Chapel on the road to Hales Corner, Quaker Neck, Chestertown and Still Pond. The Senior lived in Chestertown, the Junior traveled over the county. I have heard he only got a hundred dollars a year and he had to get his rations and feed for his horse wherever he could, he traveled on horse back.

I cannot help remember some little incidents that happened at Still Pond church. We had a lady who had been a member of the church for years, importuned the officials of the church to allow her to preach. At last they granted it to her, we went to hear her. Her text was one hundred and forty-third Psalm and the fifth verse. She announced her text and said a few words and sit down, with the sympathy of everybody. It was no greater failure than one of the greatest preachers of his day, who was a member of Still Pond church. His first start of the ministry was at the old Union Church. He undertook to preach and gave out his text and sat down. Something strange but such is the fact that same man ended his ministry in the old Union Church, having been a minister in the conference for over fifty years. The latter part of his ministry his eyes failed, he could not read a word in the Bible or hymn book. He would go and open the hymn book and announce his hymn and open the Bible and announce his text. This same preacher in after years at Still Pond church preached one of the greatest sermons I think I ever heard. His text was the thirty second chapter of Deuteronomy, the eleventh verse. I still went to Still Pond as a boy, and I remember another great sermon I heard preached by Jefferson Thompson from the book of Ecclesiastes twentieth chapter and sixth verse.

IMPORTANT TO EVERYONE

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water, and often eat more rich, heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, annoying bladder troubles, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, may be weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

Many physicians claim that an herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention the KENT NEWS, Chestertown, Md.
